"MYSTERY" BOY STILL REFUSES TO GIVE ADDRESS

Lad, 12, Tells Juvenile Authorities His Name Is James Otis Danz

HELD HERE FIVE DAYS

Placed in Solitary Confinement in Hope He Will Reveal Identity

After five days of futile investigation by Marion County juvenile court authorities, identity of the 12-year-old mystery boy who has been in their custody since Saturday night remains unknown.

The boy, who was arrested when he arrived here on board an Erie freight train, says that his name is James Otis Danz, but aside from that authorities have absolutely no information regarding his identity or place of residence.

Juvenile court officials doubt that this is actually his name, although they are using it as the only thread which may lead them to a solution of the mystery.

The boy is now in solitary confinement at the Bain Detention Home, this method being used in hope that he may decide to change his mind and reveal his whole story to the authorities.

Efforts Fail

Thus far, however, persistent questioning by Juvenile Court Officer V. H. Aller, Judge L. B. McNeal and other officials has failed to get results. Should the boy continue to hold back information which would lift the veil of mystery, he will be sent to the boys' industrial school at Lancaster, Judge McNeal stated today.

He will be held at the Detention home for probably a week to give him ample time and opportunity for changing his attitude.

"I have told all there is to tell," the youngster declared in his last statement to Juvenile Court Officer Aller this morning.

His stories thus far have been varying and contradictory.

Said Home Was Here

At first he stated that his home was in this city. Aller accompanied him to N. Main st. near Crystal Lake park, where his place of residence was supposed to be, but he was unable to designate the place.

A search made by Aller north of the city, where the boy later said his home

WALTER AULT, PROSPECT, SUCCUMBS AT HOSPITAL

Pneumonia and Complications Growing Out of Accident Injuries Fatal

Walter Ault, 28, of Prospect, died shortly after midnight at City Hospital of pneumonia and complications growing out of serious injuries received in a fall from an electric pole at Prospect last Saturday morning.

Following the accident Mr. Ault was brought to the hospital and has since been in a critical condition. He was an employe of Prospect Electric Light & Power Co. and was assisting the erection of new poles on Water st. Prospect when the accident occurred. He fell a distance of about 30 feet to the street pavement.

Examination at the hospital showed that one of his lungs had been crushed in the fall.

Walter Ault was the son of George and Katherine Ault and was born in Richland Township March 3, 1899. He married Esther Marie Hopkins Sept. 15, 1923. Surviving with the parents and widow are two sons, George, aged three years, and James LeRoy, aged two, and one sister, Mrs. Ellen Nicholson, of Pleasant Township.

Brief services are to be held from the home of the parents in Pleasant Township Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, with funeral rites at the Prospect Reformed Church at 2 o'clock with Rev. R. C. Windhorst in charge. Burial will be made in Prospect Cemetery.

At the time of accident Mr. Ault had been in the employ of the Prospect Light & Power Co. but four weeks. He was employed by the C. D. & M. Electric Co. for six years previous to this time. He moved to Prospect with his family two years ago. He was a member of the Prospect Reformed Church and the Knights of Pythias Lodge and held the office of secretary of Zion Workers, a recently instituted men's church organization at Prospect.

HERE'S RULE ON FIRE APPARATUS

The driver of any vehicle, upon the approach of any fire apparatus, ambulance or police patrol of the City of Marion, answering a call of fire or police emergency, shall immediately propel his vehicle to the right curb of the street and parallel thereto, and shall cause his vehicle to remain standing there until all such apparatus, ambulance, or police patrol has passed.

Sure, They're Both Going to Win---They Say

New York, July 21—Both Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey, who meet in a 15-round bout in Yankee Stadium here tonight with a crack at Gene Tunney's title as the prize, were confident of victory today. Sharkey declared in no uncertain manner that he would win by a knockout. Dempsey said he hoped to drop the Boston man in the early rounds, but asserted he would outpoint Sharkey even if he failed to put him to sleep. As far as Sharkey is concerned, the thing is a closed incident. "No hard feelings, you understand, in fact he likes Dempsey as a man but that man happens to be in the way of his ambition and Sharkey is not one to tolerate anything like that."

VERNON M. RIEGEL SUED ON CHARGE OF FRAUD

Former Marion County School Head and State Director Named in Action

Vernon M. Riegel, former Marion County superintendent of schools and until recently state director of education, is defendant in a suit for $5,200 brought in the Franklin County court, in which he is charged with fraudulent sale of stock of the Producers Oil & Gas Co. The suit was brought by Louis J. Ruff, one of the company's creditors.

A receiver was appointed for the concern on Ruff's application Tuesday and his suit against Riegel was started yesterday.

The company was incorporated March 20, 1922, by Riegel and others with a capital stock of $40,000. Assets consisted of 73-1/2 acres of land and three wells in Mercer County.

Riegel, according to the charges in Ruff's petition, issued stock without necessary approval of the state utilities commission, retaining [illegible] shares for himself.

Later 450 shares were sold to Ruff by Riegel and his associates. They failed to inform him that the stock had been issued illegally and therefore was valueless, Ruff alleges. He states that he paid $28,200 for the stock.

Riegel served as superintendent of Marion County schools for several years, resigning to accept appointment as state director of education. He resigned his position with the state a month ago to head the educational department of the Fox Film Corp.

FUR COATS AND DRESSES ARE STOLEN AT KENTON

Uhlman's Store Places Estimate of $1,891 as Value of Loot

(Special to The Star)

Kenton, July 21—Thieves, who Chief of Police O. D. Shelton contends were sane and familiar with their surroundings, last night made off with fur coats and silk dresses valued at $1,891 from Uhlman's store here.

After conducting an investigation of the theft this morning Chief Shelton stated that no tangible clues were available. Entrance to the store's interior was gained, he said, by an open skylight. The thieves evidently lowered themselves from the skylight to the store's top floor by a rope.

MONDAY COAL CO. BURNED WITH LOSS OF $3,000

Nelsonville, July 21—Pending arrival of bloodhounds from Pomeroy, local authorities today proceeded with their investigation of the mysterious fire which destroyed the power plant at the Monday Coal Company's mine at Monday, near here, Wednesday night. Loss is estimated at $3,000. Officials were inclined to believe the fire was of incendiary origin.

The mine has been operating for about three years on a non-union basis, employing about 30 men.

King Michael, Frail Child, Today Rules Roumania, Hailed as "Sad Baby King"

Runs to Mother During Ascendency Ceremonies, Buries Head in Her Lap and Weeps; Not Robust and Not Playful; Speaks Three Languages

Bucharest, July 21—A frail little youngster going on six, with long brown curls, today rules the biggest kingdom in the turbulent Balkans.

He is King Michael I of Roumania, who was proclaimed late yesterday in the great hall of parliament, 14 hours after his grandfather, King Ferdinand I, died in Castelul Palace, Sinai.

The little king already is being referred to as "the sad baby king."

Ordinarily a child of a serious nature, this 5-year-old mite appears to have been impressed greatly with the ceremonies attendant to his ascendancy to the throne and his usually sober mien has become a sad one.

During the ceremonies in the parliament in Bucharest yesterday, King Michael stood bravely at salute, his tiny hand sometimes faltering and often times with his lips quivering, but he steeled himself against what seemed to be a terrible ordeal to him. At the first occasion, however, he ran to his mother, Princess Helen, and buried his head in her lap and wept, while she consoled him, restraining her own tears with difficulty.

Not Robust Child

King Michael is not a robust child and only a few months ago he was taken to the Italian Riviera for his health. He faces a great ordeal, for like his grandfather, the dead King Ferdinand, he probably will never be permitted to use his own will, but during his childhood and youth he will be subjected to varying and conflicting currents of pressure.

Studious and serious of mind, King Michael is more apart than the average child. He speaks Roumanian, English and French and is proficient in elementary studies. He is not a playful child and as yet has failed to display any signs of the love of sports which his father, Prince Carol, has.

Little King Michael will not rule his nation in person until he is 18 years old. He is under the tutelage of a regency which was sworn in before the national assembly at the same time that Michael ascended the throne.

The regents who will administer the government for the little monarch are Prince Nicholas, Patriarch Cristea and Supreme Court Justice Buzdugan.

See Marie as Power

There are some who believe that Queen Marie, widow of the dead monarch and grandmother of the tiny king, will be the "real power behind the

ANGLO-JAP AGREEMENT NOT ACCEPTABLE TO U. S.

British Must Make Modifications If Conference Is Not To Fail

Washington, July 21—The so-called Anglo-Japanese agreement at the Geneva naval conference, calling for an allotment of 12-12-8 in 10,000-ton cruisers and the limitation of armament on lesser cruisers to six inch guns, is not acceptable to American naval experts. And unless the British delegates go back to Geneva from London prepared to make material modifications in this program, the chances for an ultimate agreement are considered slight in Washington.

"Every proposition thus far advanced by the British would inevitably figure out to British naval supremacy," one American naval authority told International News Service today. "We cannot accept such a situation, nor do I believe that congress would approve any treaty authorizing it."

The temporary adjournment of the naval conference and the British return to London for new instructions, is regarded in Washington as a final effort to save the conference from the rocks of complete failure upon which it has been beating for several weeks.

Britain's naval delegates, headed by the unyielding W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, have persistently declined to accept American recommendations, aimed at establishing true naval parity between the British and American fleets.

RESUME RAIL TRAVEL OVER TRACKS AT FOREST

Force of 100 Men, Three Wreck Trains Clear Away Debris

(Special to The Star)

Forest, July 21—Traffic was resumed over the double track mainline of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Ft. Wayne Division, here at 9 o'clock last night after a force of 100 workmen and three wrecking trains had cleared away the debris of yesterday's disastrous freight wreck, explosion and fire.

Estimates made today placed the damage at $150,000.

L. C. Harmon, chain grocery store manager, hit by a flying brick, was able to return to work today.

A large force of men was engaged today in building a temporary depot to replace the structure destroyed yesterday. A check-up showed that 21 freight cars had been completely destroyed in the fire and that several others were damaged.

Statements of railroad officials this morning indicated that no further investigation will be made into the cause of the wreck. The fire started when 15 freight cars of an eastbound freight were derailed and piled up in front of the depot. Offices and a storage room of the Dickleman Manufacturing Co., the Pennsylvania depot, 1,000 feet of track and a $50,000 joint interlocking block system of the Pennsylvania-Big Four junction were destroyed.

WANTS DEMOCRATS TO NOMINATE WESTERNER

Former Illinois Senator Also Would Have Convention Precede G. O. P. Meet

Washington, July 21—The Democrats should select a presidential candidate from the agricultural section of the middle west.

Reversing a policy of the last 60 years, the Democratic national convention should be held prior to the Republican convention.

These suggestions have been made to the Democratic National Committee by Ex-Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois. Lewis' views were explained in a letter today to International News Service.

Lewis declared that the Democratic National Committee has not replied to his suggestions.

TWO JACKS ON EDGE AS BOUT HOUR NEARS

Dempsey Ready To Try for Comeback, While Sharkey Hopes To Use Former Champ as Stepping Stone for Crack at Gene Tunney

FIGHT WILL DRAW GATE OF $1,200,000

Odds Stand Two to One on Ex-Gob; Dempsey Continues To Be Great Attraction to Man in Street, Says Walsh

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, July 21—Jack Sharkey had an advantage of one pound and a half over Jack Dempsey when the two gladiators, who meet at the Yankee Stadium tonight, weighed in this afternoon at Madison Square Garden. Dempsey tipped the scales at 194½ pounds while Sharkey weighed exactly 196 pounds.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, July 21—The beggar of the Bible stood with hands upraised in supplication, asking only a crust from the rich man's table, and he got not a crumb.

Tonight that beggar will live again in a man who will shock from his sleek young body the silken garments of a minor society darling and, standing semi-naked in the glare of the kleigs, beg at the gates of public opinion for the thing he once held. Tonight at the Yankee Stadium Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, will make the great attempt to retravel the road he followed so blithely eight years ago, a road that led to honor and glory and wealth and pain.

But a weary laden traveler now, laden with the years, and the first man that will cross his path is a youth, rollicking, joyous and full of sassafras. If one didn't know better he might mistake the meeting as one between Dempsey and his own youth.

Gate of $1,200,000

Jack Dempsey, the come-back, and Jack Sharkey, the come-ahead, will meet tonight in a 15-round bout to settle the identity of the official challenger for the heavyweight title.

Just a prize fight, perhaps, but 80,000 persons will see it and a flood of gold will fill the coffers of those so engaged. Dempsey, tacitly trying to regain the honor he held from 1919 until 1926, will be persuaded to accept a guarantee of $250,000 for his pains and Sharkey's end hardly will be worse than $200,000.

Just a mere contest of brawn, may be, but the public officially will pay the non-championship record sum of $1,200,000 for seeing it and unofficially almost any sum the mind can conjure. For somehow, totally unaccounted for, an usual ticket speculators have come upon many of the choice seats and those at the list price of $27.50 were selling today in the hundreds of dollars.

Dempsey Great Attraction

Yes, it may be that this is only a prize fight, but the world itself will be in a hush while it is on, whether your world happens to be State and Madison, Chicago, the Rue De La Paix, Pall Mall, a little prairie town on the coal oil circuit or the small plaza at Rio. For the moment this gallant and very appealing figure who once was great and the youth who soon may be will hold the center of the stage and the world will be their audience.

Dempsey, even in his declining years, is the great attraction, even as he was in his youth. He slipped into town from his training camp at White Sulphur Springs late yesterday and, with great stealth and circumspection, contrived to escape the mob long enough to reach the home of Leo P. Flynn, his manager. Inside of 15 minutes, a crowd of five thousand had gathered at the doors and it required the strong-arm of a traffic squad to clear the street of the curious.

Sharkey Gets Odds

SAYS 25 U. S. MARINES KILLED IN NICARAGUA

Mexican Agent of Liberals Says Information Came from Costa Rica

Mexico City, July 21—The bodies of 25 United States Marines were taken to Chinandega and Leon after the battle of Ocotal, Nicaragua, between marines and General Sandino's rebel forces, according to a statement issued today by Pedro Zepeda, agent of the Nicaraguan Liberals here.

Zepeda declared he had received his information from Costa Rica. Zepeda denies that General Sandino is a bandit. He says Sandino has 1,400 men under him and only 400 of those took part in the Ocotal battle.

Official reports stated that one marine was killed and another wounded in the Ocotal battle.

Toledo, July 21—Death of Miss Harriet Deming, 21, today was due to burns received during a gas explosion at her home here Monday. James Lattin, 21, fatally hurt during the blast, died soon after the accident. Miss Euphrasia Dunbar, 17, is said to be recovering from injuries sustained during the blast.

MARION RADIO CONCERN ADDS NEW BUSINESS

Van-Bur Company Establishes Department To Install Speaker Systems

Indications that Marion is likely in time to occupy a prominent role in the radio industry are seen in latest reports of progress made by the Van Bur Radio Co., one of the city's most recently established industrial concerns.

In addition to developing a steadily increasing market for its radio receiving sets, the Van Bur Co. has established a new department which installs speaker systems for broadcasting purposes and which promises to become one of the most important branches of the company's operations.

Last week the company completed installation of broadcasting and amplifying equipment at Cedar Point, establishing a system which will carry speeches, music and other program features over a large part of the Cedar Point beach and park grounds.

Selects Local Concern

The G. A. Boeckling Co., which owns and manages the famous lake resort, selected the Van Bur equipment after trying out systems installed by some of the largest radio companies in the country, officials of the local concern state.

This contract is the largest handled thus far by the Van Bur Co., but negotiations are under way for several other large installations which will measure up close to the Cedar Point job. One is for an amusement park in New York City, and others are for a high school in Cleveland and three high schools in New Jersey.

Several weeks ago a Van Bur speaker system was installed in the dance hall at Avondale, Buckeye Lake. It amplifies the music in the dance hall and also carries it across the lake.

Only One on Market

The Van Bur long tone speaker, the only one of its kind on the market, and a new amplifier recently devised at the plant here are the two outstanding features of the broadcasting system.

Ten of the long tone speakers were installed at Cedar Point, six being located in the convention hall and the other four in the cafeteria, cascade, animal show and radio operator's room. The one in the operator's room enables the man in charge to regulate the broadcasting so that perfect results are secured.

The speaker in the cascade carries the programs to the beach and park grounds.

Given First Test

The Van-Bur system was given its first test at Cedar Point at the annual convention of the Ohio Bankers' Association on June 22. The amplifying and broadcasting results were so thoroughly satisfactory that the Boeckling company immediately contracted for additional equipment. The Cedar Point system will be enlarged next year so that programs will be broadcast to all points on the grounds, according to present plans.

GALION YOUTH DIES IN FALL FROM BRIDGE

Lester Harsh, 13, Loses Footing, Drops 25 Feet to Creek Bank

Galion, July 21—Lester Harsh, 13, son of Mr and Mrs Lester Harsh, [illegible], was killed yesterday afternoon while playing at the railroad bridge on the Big Four tracks near Fremont st. With a younger companion Lester, who had been on a hike along the tracks, stopped to play at the bridge. Venturing too near the edge of the structure the boy lost his footing and fell 25 feet, alighting on rocks at the bank of a creek below.

Skull Fractured

Yard workers carried the boy into the plant of the Galion Electric Light Co nearby and an ambulance was immediately called. The youth died on the way to the Good Samaritan Hospital.

The body was taken to the Snyder funeral home where an examination showed that a skull fracture had caused almost instant death. The body was prepared for burial and later taken to the home of the parents. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Cleveland Southwestern, City of Galion Disagree In Discussing New Ordinance

Railway and Light Company's Representative Declares Measure "Unfair and Unsatisfactory", Definite Action To Be Taken at Next Meeting

Galion, July 21—With an important pending, the franchise renewal with the Cleveland Southwestern Railway & Light Co still hangs in the balance following a meeting of the city council for discussion of the subject.

E. M. McKisson, representative of the railway company, was present [illegible] of the company's officials in regard to the franchise prepared several weeks ago by a special committee. In discussing the proposed ordinance Mr McKisson declared it to be unfair and unsatisfactory and further stated that the company [illegible] be able to [illegible] operate if such action was taken by the city.

Councilmen Defend Measures

A number of the councilmen, principally those who were members of the committee that drafted the franchise, spoke in defense of the measure. It was declared that many of the provisions were inserted as protection to the city as the franchise if passed will be in effect at least 10 years. Several councilmen expressed the opinion that unless the Southwestern accepts the franchise as it now stands authorities should insist that the tracks be removed and that the company cease operations here.

McKisson asked for a meeting to be arranged at which company officials could be present and in adjourning a decision was reached that definite action be taken at the next regular meeting.

DUNKIRK MAN SCORES FIRST IN TRAPSHOOT

K. E. Mitchell Is Winner In Second of Series of Marksmanship Contests

Kenton, July 21—K. E. Mitchell, Dunkirk, won the second of a series of registered trapshoots held yesterday by the Hardin County Gun Club at the Forest range, breaking 146 targets out of a possible 150 at 16 yards.

Charles Glenn, Kenton, Dake of Defrost and Charles Bogart, Springfield, tied for second honors, each scoring 145 hits. Dr J. Cooke and Dr Butler finished third with 141.

Twenty-six shooters from Hardin and surrounding counties participated. Records show that 20 of this number finished with an average of 90 per cent or better. A third shoot is to be held Aug 21 and a fourth on Sept 21.

KENTON SERVICE HEAD SEEKS ADDITIONAL FUND

Frank Price Petitions Council For Transfer of Money; No Action Taken

Kenton, July 21—Request of additional money for the fund from which the salary of the city engineer is drawn, for the sewer fund and the fund for the maintenance of the city's disposal plant was made of city council by Frank Price, city service director.

A stipulated amount was not mentioned, however, Mr Price asked that the amount be made sufficiently large to last throughout the remainder of the year.

While no action was taken by council the matter has been placed in the hands of the finance committee for consideration and recommendation. There is a possibility that a bond issue of relatively small proportions may be asked since there is no other money in the city treasury available for these funds.

The city engineering fund, according to Mr Price, has a balance of but $2,007 with the year just a little more than half gone while the sewer fund is overdrawn $10. An unusually large amount of sewer repair work, engineering and surveying has been necessary as a result of heavy rains and bad weather this spring resulting in a heavy withdrawal from the two funds, the director pointed out.

Interest In Movement For Bucyrus Playground Grows

BUCYRUS, July 21—With promises of a gift of $500 made by each of two local [illegible] interest in the raising of funds for the construction of a wading pool in the city's playground on [illegible] that has been revived. [illegible] the donors of $500 ask that one [illegible], namely the raising of the remaining $1,000 needed to complete the project, be met before they fulfill their promise.

Mayor [illegible] Schuler has brought the matter before the Park Commission in an [illegible] of making a valuable move in the direction of the $500 prize offered by the Harmon Foundation for the city whose playgrounds show the most improvement in a certain specified time. A plan whereby the conditions of the two prospective donors may be met is under way, according to Mayor Schuler.

Grounds Inaccessible

Earnest efforts are being made on the part of the Park Commission to make a good showing in the Harmon Foundation national contest. A method to raise funds for the purchase of playground equipment for the ward school building grounds is being sought. The greatest objection to the present playground is its inaccessibility to many children. Playgrounds in other parts of the city would give all children better places to play, members of the Park Commission point out.

One of the plans to get the parents to visit the grounds is to have one of the public band concerts sponsored by the Ad Club to be given at the playground. Permission is being sought from the Ad Club.

It is stated that the attendance at the field is three times greater than last year. Two supervisors are present.

BYRD PICTURES FUTURE OCEAN PLANE AT MEET

Flight of America Reviewed at Luncheon by Transatlantic Flier

New York, July 21—[illegible] of an airport [illegible] to be used as a base in operation [illegible] mail service from [illegible] was advocated by Commander Richard E. Byrd in an address at a luncheon of the Merchants Association at the Hotel Astor.

The luncheon was held in honor of Byrd and his three companions of the transatlantic flight and of Clarence Chamberlin. Mayor [illegible] talks attended.

Byrd quoted a telegram he received from Congressman William [illegible] of New York stating he will introduce a bill in the next congress to [illegible] Governors Island for an airport in connection with an air mail service [illegible] [illegible] asked [illegible] compiled [illegible]

The transatlantic plane Byrd visualized would have twice the wing spread about 140 feet of the America [illegible] engine power [illegible] sleeping [illegible] for the crew [illegible] filling [illegible] in order to keep [illegible] powerful engine [illegible] capable of reaching 1,700 miles.

Byrd reviewed the flight of the America [illegible] a pretty detail [illegible] praise on his companions [illegible]

Clarence Chamberlin, pilot of the Columbia [illegible] non-stop flight from New York to Germany with Charles Levine as passenger, spoke briefly expressing the belief that before [illegible] the Merchants Association would [illegible] transatlantic air service for industrial purposes.

Democrats Said to Desire Coolidge as G. O. P. Nominee

Present Chief Remains Favorite in Washington Betting, Says Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 21—Democratic politicians all prefer Calvin Coolidge to any other presidential candidate they think the Republicans might possibly put up—if they should give Cal the grab—in 1928.

At least they say so.

I can't think why they should [illegible] it yet.

Later on, when the nominations are all made and the campaign is on, of course each side will lie about the other side until both sides are black in the face.

Just now, however, I don't see any good reason in this particular [illegible] for anything but the truth, except possibly for the sake of practice, and it seems to me rather early to start a campaign. There's the danger of overtraining before the time's ripe, if it begins too soon.

SO when a Democratic manager tells me that Coolidge is his ideal Republican presidential candidate I believe he means what he says—at this stage of the game.

They're quite outspoken about it at Democratic national headquarters over in the Investment Building.

As between their own party's various aspirants naturally they haven't the faintest whisper to utter, the committee members' job being to accept whatever nominee the convention hands to 'em and declare he was the one they'd been praying for all the time.

But on the Republican ticket they don't a bit mind whooping it up for Cal.

THE Democratic theory for one thing is that anti-third term talk is beginning to produce a perceptible impression.

At present it's capital if at all only for President Coolidge's Republican rivals, but if he should be renominated it immediately would become ammunition for the Democrats, and they think they could use it far more effectively than it's being used now.

And the farmers?

Democratic forecasters don't believe they're going to be at all well pleased with any McNary-Haugen Bill [illegible] premise [illegible] likely to get. The [illegible] is [illegible] a western [illegible] as [illegible]

THERE are other cards the Democrats [illegible] expect to play in the [illegible] campaign if the anti-third term card and the farm relief card [illegible] if [illegible] and [illegible] Coolidge is nominated.

But Coolidge wouldn't be as good at all against anybody else and [illegible] Lowden would be [illegible] good for [illegible] standing as Frank O. Lowden [illegible] Dawes with farm relief [illegible] capital letters.

Of [illegible] Coolidge is the Democratic managers' pick—for the other side.

ALTHOUGH Coolidge remains the favorite so far as Washington betting is concerned as Republican candidate, in winner he isn't quite as [illegible] with [illegible] as he was three months ago.

Lowden probably would come second, and Dawes third, with Hoover [illegible] [illegible] was reckoned right after [illegible] as [illegible] intermediate.

Nick Longworth is hardly mentioned any more.

Very [illegible] Secretary of the Treasury Mellon seems to be developing a little boom. The idea sounds perfectly [illegible] to me. He's 72 years [illegible] nothing of plenty of other things about him that I'd suppose would make him absolutely impossible. Nevertheless he has a few strong boosters.

FARM BUREAU MEETING HELD AT KNACKLE HOME

Picnic Supper Feature of Gathering Splendid Program Is Given

Prospect, July 21—About 75 members and friends of the Prospect Township Farm Bureau met Tuesday night at the [illegible] home of Mr. and Mrs. William Knackle for their regular monthly meeting.

A picnic supper was enjoyed after which Frank Meyer, president, conducted a short business session. A short program followed. [illegible] songs by the [illegible] Vera Knackle gave a reading, The [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Thomas a reading, [illegible] Dorothy Jane Hedges a reading, [illegible] Mrs. Frank Meyer, Mrs. Lee Griffith, Mrs. Dayton Hedges and Mrs. William Knackle gave a playlet entitled, The Charm of the Old [illegible]

Mr. Brown of the State Farm Bureau Association gave a short talk on Automobile Insurance.

A fine social time was enjoyed. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Fitt and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Griffith, Mrs. Dayton Hedges and children Dorothy Jane, Henrietta and Fred, Ruth Isly and Velma Almendinger.

GREEN CAMP GIRLS' GROUP MEETS AT WESTON HOME

Green Camp, July 21—The W. W. G. girls met with Misses Mildred and Donna Ruth Weston at their home west of town Monday night. The program in charge of Donna Ruth Weston opened with a song, [illegible] Guild Girls, followed with prayer by Mrs. Claire Lorier. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary and reports on the study book [illegible] were given by Misses Marjorie and Eleanor Lorier and Donna Ruth Weston. During a short business session the main topic for discussion was the purchasing of new study books. There was a perfect attendance present, the first in the history of the Guild, and the following guests: Misses LaMaine [illegible] Dixon, Bernice Furness and Emma Dix Kreutler [illegible] Miss Mary Lois Butler will entertain the Guild the third Monday in August with Miss Marjorie Lorier as leader. Lunch was served by the hostess.

GRANGE MEETS

Whetstone Grange, No. 1933 met in regular session Tuesday evening. Plans are being made to hold an ice cream social at the hall three miles northeast of Wall Thursday night, July 28. The public is invited. The next meeting will be held at the hall Aug. 2.

You'll see Vernon Heights values increase with the completion of the new boulevard through to the monument line now. Lots $1,500 and up.—Advertisement.

Perfections make big meals easier

8 Ways
1 Instant lighting
2 Gaslike heat
3 Heat direct to the cooking
4 Perfect heat control in each burner
5 Flame never "creeps"
6 Burners in a row
7 Roomy cooking surface
8 Handy warming cabinet

Color in Newest Perfections! Gray porcelain enamel tops. Gray legs. Satin-black body finish. White enamel warming cabinets. Large white front ovens—On newest Perfections, and all those with Superfex burners.

You can trust the newest Perfections to carry out any cooking plans!

Touch a match to the Perfection wick. Vigorous, quivering heat pours up Perfection's long chimneys—direct to the cooking. In every burner there's heat to get things "done"—and in a hurry, too.

Stew lots of chicken, bake dozens of rolls and a huge pudding, boil vegetables, make gallons of corn chowder. Cook anything—in any quantity! The flames stay where you set them. These safe stoves need no watching.

No reaching across hot flames with Perfection. The burners come in a row. And back of them there's ample room to keep food hot while you boil water for tea. A handy warming shelf adds working space.

In these 8 ways, and many others, the latest Perfection that "gets" your family meals, speeds "big meal" cooking. See the newest models at any dealer's. 1 to 5 burner sizes. Priced from $7.25 to $130.

CHAPTER 1

"[illegible] morning, Aunt Flora." Vera Victoria Cameron [illegible] her glass-shielded eyes from the morning paper [illegible] had been reading as she ate her breakfast and al[illegible] to rest with gravity and forbearance upon her [illegible] slightly time-worn aunt, who was trailing pink [illegible] draperies into the small dining room of the apart[illegible] Mrs. Cartwright shared, because of temporary [illegible] with her young niece.

"[illegible] morning, Vee-Vee," Flora Cartwright sighed, lay[illegible] cate, highly manicured hand against her tired blue [illegible] do you mind if I ask you not to use that brisk, business-like voice this morning? It is really more [illegible] bear, darling. What are you eating? Prunes? [illegible] eggs? Whole wheat toast? It is positively amaz[illegible] that you can stand the sight of so much food so [illegible] morning."

"[illegible] quarter past eight, Aunt Flora—" Vera Cameron [illegible] a flush rising from her throat to her brow against [illegible] flat wide braids of nice but uninteresting brown hair [illegible] a crown of virtue. Behind the sparkling lenses of [illegible] rim spectacles her eyes, their color disguised by [illegible] tint of the glasses, filled with treacherous tears.

"[illegible] good heavens, child, spare me!" Flora Cartwright [illegible] then broke into an amused, indulgent chuckle. "I [illegible] the whole story! You've been up since seven o'clock [illegible] exactly on the dot, sprang right out of bed, did [illegible] exercises for exactly fifteen minutes, took an ice cold [illegible] brushed that indecently and unfashionably long [illegible] hair of yours exactly one hundred strokes of a stiff-[illegible] brush, timed yourself while you plaited it, gave [illegible] self a ten minute manicure, dressed yourself in what [illegible] Business Woman's Magazine' prescribes as a suitable [illegible] for the efficient young secretary, made your bed, [illegible] ghtened your room to apple-pie order, cooked your [illegible] fast and ate it—all on schedule to the half minute. [illegible] are a great trial to me, Vee-Vee," she sighed humorous[illegible]

"But I hope you made me some good strong coffee and [illegible] a couple of oranges into a glass and set it in a bowl [illegible] cracked ice for me. I could forgive you anything—even [illegible] the world's most efficient and perfect private secretary—if you did those two [illegible] for me."

Vera Cameron's grave, unrouged mouth twitched into a smile as she rose and walked toward the kitchenette. Not even the severe lines of her black serge suit, the skirt of which reached halfway to her modest black [illegible] ankles, could conceal the natural youth and buoyancy and slenderness of her tall [illegible]

"Thank you, darling," Flora Cameron sighed gratefully when her niece set coffee, cream and a glass of orange juice before her. "Has the mail come yet? Wild horses couldn't drag me out of bed at this ungodly hour if it were not the first of the month."

"Not yet," Vera answered, her eyes straying again to the morning paper as she raised her cup of tea to her lips.

"I can never make up my mind whether to hate the first of the month or adore it," Flora Cartwright remarked, her voice becoming chattily cheerful as the hot coffee took effect. "The bundle of bills—I'm sure I can't possibly spend as much as the shops charge me with—offset by one long, slim legal envelope with my alimony check in it. Be very sure, my darling, that the man you marry has no conscientious objections to paying alimony. Men are becoming so — so materialistic these days."

"My suitors are not so numerous that I have reached the necessity of classifying them according to whether they will or will not pay alimony," Vera Cameron retorted witheringly. "And I might add that I should never dream of asking alimony of my marriage—purely [illegible] as that event is—should prove disastrous."

"Oh my Lord!" Flora Cartwright groaned, then laughed a shrewd, delicious chuckle. "Do you talk to your boss like that, darling? I should think the poor dear would try to arrange to spend all his time playing golf if you d[illegible]."

"I certainly don't discuss alimony and my matrimonial prospects with my employer," Vera retorted sharply, but her mouth, which frequently annoyed her by being childish and soft and sweet, smiled as she held it in very firmly [illegible].

"I was referring, Vee-Vee, to the tones of your voice, the excited character of your rhetoric and not to the subject matter of your discourse. I assure you —oh, good grief, I'm talking like you! Vee-Vee, if you don't reform, you're going to ruin me! I'm such an imitative monkey. Do you know what I said to Peter Darrow last night, the poor darling?"

"I haven't an idea," Vera said, setting her tea cup down with a clatter. "But I do think you ought to be ashamed of yourself for getting that infant into such a state about you that he hangs around here every night in the week—"

"You exaggerate, dearest," Flora Cartwright grinned at her, her delicate little hand patting the deep flat marcel wave in her tinted blond hair. "He isn't here every night. Husband number two insists on two evenings a week. If he hadn't been such an awfully poor sport about alimony I'd marry him again. But let me tell you what I said to Peter, the poor dear—"

"There's the postman's ring," Vera interrupted, rising hastily from the table. "I'll bring you your mail, but I'll have to run then, or I'll be late at the office."

When Vera returned with the mail she carried her black felt hat and her dull kid black leather handbag and a well filled brief case in her hands.

"Did my alimony check come?" Flora demanded eagerly. "Oh, thank the god of widows and orphans! Toss these bills to the sideboard, darling. I don't want to spoil my hour of gloating by the sight of them. Nicky isn't such a bad old scout, is he? I wonder if he's happy with that new wife of his? She's a red head, I hear. Poor Nicky!" she sighed [illegible]. "It's dated April 29," she commented as she scanned the check. "April 29! That's an anniversary of mine, I'm almost positive! Let's see—did I marry Nicky on April 29 or was it Leon? When a woman has been married four times—oh, must you go, darling? Will you be home for dinner?"

"Why do you ask?" Vera demanded bitterly. "Of course I shall be home for dinner unless I eat at the Automat alone. But if you're going out—"

"Peter wants me to dine with him, go to a theater, then to a night club," her aunt admitted, sighing a little from last night's weariness, but there was a tender smile on her lips—lips that her niece had never seen without rouge. "Bring home one of the young men from the office and go out with us, darling. It would do you good."

"I'm afraid my employers wouldn't agree with you that it does a secretary good to dance till all hours of the night," Vera retorted, but her aunt understood the blush that swept over Vera's smooth, freckled cheeks, to which rouge was a stranger. If Vera could conceivably so far forget herself as to ask one of her fellow workers to spend an evening with her, he would almost certainly refuse the invitation.

"Besides," Vera added, "I have every hope of stepping into a promotion today. Gladys Holmes, who has been secretary to Mr. Canfield, the president, for more than a year, left Saturday to be married, and I expect to get her position. The job pays fifty a week, ten more than I'm getting now."

"You say her name was Gladys?" Mrs. Cartwright mused. "Was she a Gladys sort of person, dear? A cuddly little blond, perhaps?"

"She is very pretty—chestnut hair and blue eyes," Vera admitted. "But I don't see what that has to do with it—"

"Don't you, darling? I'm afraid you may find out. But don't mind me. After all, I'm only a pretty parasite, as you've so often reminded me, dear—a shameless, useless creature who has buried two husbands and divorced two others. I hope you get the job, and that you spend the extra ten a week on peach colored silk underwear for the good of your soul."

"You know I'm trying to save money—" Vera began resentfully, but her eyes betrayed her for an instant by becoming misty.

"And succeeding nobly," her aunt reminded her laughing. "You must have at least three thousand dollars saved toward your retirement into the old ladies' home, and you're still only twenty-four years old. My dear, when I was twenty-four I had buried my first husband and divorced my second—and was engaged to my third, if memory serves me rightly. And I was handicapped by this horrible little nose—" she tapped the maligned feature with a scornful forefinger. "If I had had a nose like yours that is absolutely wasted on you because you refuse to make the most of it—"

"Oh, you're just picking on me, Aunt Flora."

"And your mouth—if you'd listen to reason and put just a tiny touch of lip rouge on it, it would be absolutely the most kissable I've ever seen—" her aunt's laughing drawl followed the girl as she fled from the dining room.

Vera Cameron ran gracefully and fleetly along Riverside Drive, swung to the step of a great lumbering green bus, climbed up the winding staircase and found a seat beside a young man who glanced up hopefully from his paper.

It was no reason, Vera told herself angrily, why she should blush like an absurd school girl or like a nervous old maid just because an insane youth who probably made less than she did dropped his seeking eyes hastily to his newspaper. If he had dared to try to flirt with her she would have squelched him. But would she? She was startled at the question which elbowed its impudent way through the well-traveled grooves of her mind. Anyone would think she was repulsive, the way that odious young man had looked her over and declined her—

But—she sighed and settled back into her seat resignedly—she did have to wear glasses and she was freckle-faced and her hair was mousy. So the only thing left for her to do was to be the most efficient secretary in the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Company's offices. Ever since she had graduated from business college when she was nineteen, she had devoted herself with deep seriousness to making herself a business success. She had held positions in three companies, had started work at fifteen dollars a week and was now getting forty. [illegible] she would be promoted to fifty a week.

From fifteen to fifty dollars a week in five years had not been easy, and she had not always been happy, but [illegible] she was never dull. She had [illegible] business as very [illegible] She had been a member of a [illegible] club for four years and had [illegible] all the business [illegible] and to all the other magazines which were designed to fit earnest [illegible] workers for bigger and better things.

She had taken a long and extensive course in chemistry to better understand the business of the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Company. She had watched her health, knowing that health meant efficiency. She walked the prescribed hour a day and did setting-up exercises night and morning with religious regularity, ate foods that contained the largest percentage of vitamins, went to bed early and rose early. She had repressed her desires for pretty and foolish clothes with the sternness of a nun and had dressed according to the business women's magazine. She did not waste her time at the office in gossip and in making up her face in the girls' rest room. She did not watch the clock, thought nothing of working overtime, had the interest of her firm at heart always—

A pair of large, good tears welled out of her eyes and slipped down her cheeks. The tears [illegible] her glasses so that she had to fumble helplessly for a handkerchief. What in the world was the matter with her? Was she going soft—[illegible] spring fever? She had learned to [illegible] the season of gay, flattering dresses, which the other girls shamelessly wore to the office, the season of sweethearts [illegible] at each other on the green iron benches all up and down Riverside Drive park.

She had never had a real sweetheart. Calvin Trumble, who had wanted a "helpmeet" who could earn more than her half of the expenses, didn't count; neither did Aunt Flora's discarded suitor, middle-aged Mr. Perdue, who had talked pathetically of his broken heart and his motherless little children. How did Aunt Flora do it? She had had four husbands, could marry again tomorrow if she wanted to. And Aunt Flora was useless, a spendthrift, a pleasure-mad, vain woman.

She—Vera Victoria Cameron—was certainly an old-fashioned girl, if it was old fashioned not to expose the knees and bob the hair and paint like a chorus girl and pet like a demi-mondaine. And yet—men did not "prefer" her, and she was lonely, for all her success, and tears were slipping uncontrollably down her cheeks. If only Aunt Flora would let her alone—stop "kidding" her, let her be herself in peace—

When she entered the foyer of the twenty-two story office building where the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Company occupied an entire floor—the factory was in Jersey—she was again the brisk, business-like young private secretary. A pleasant excitement routed her depression. She was glad her new, neatly tailored black [illegible] suit had arrived in time for this important day. A glance in the mirror of the elevator told her that the white silk blouse, with its pleated jabot and its high collar and frilled cuffs, was exactly the right thing for the suit. It made her look well dressed, efficient, but not [illegible]. And the hard [illegible] black felt hat looked the eighteen [illegible] she had reluctantly paid for it. Mr. Canfield would recognize her evident fitness for the dignified position of secretary to the president. Gladys Holmes had [illegible] this last week worn powder blue silk crepe with long tasseled sleeves that must have annoyed Mr. Canfield with their fluttering. And Gladys had clicked about the offices on slender three inch French heels. The dimples in her [illegible] exposed knees must have been disgusting to a business man like Mr. Canfield.

She went briskly to her office, a little cubicle outside the private office of the sales manager, opened her desk, arranged notebook and pencils ready for a call from her boss whenever he happened to stroll in—late as usual on Mondays, filed a basket of correspondence which she had answered on Saturday, and was at ten o'clock making a careful graphic representation of a sales report on business for the month of March when an office boy skidded into the room.

"The old man wants to see you, Miss Cameron," he grinned at her. He was probably the only human being connected with the entire office force that did not feel any awe at all of Miss V. V. Cameron.

Any other girl in the world would have snatched up a vanity case and powdered her nose before obeying that summons. Vera rose instantly, did not even pat the smooth flat braids of her brown hair, for she knew that they lay in immaculate order against her brow and over her small ears. She was guiltless of any evidence of vanity, however. She took from its hanger the severe little jacket to her new suit, buttoned it snugly over the white silk blouse, arranged collar and cuff with quick, deft fingers and then walked briskly but unhurriedly down the long corridor to the door marked "Mr. Canfield." As she entered the secretary's office she cast an appraising and possessive glance at the big mahogany desk which would now be hers. A thick oriental rug lay sunnily on the floor. Oh, it would be nice to be mistress of this pleasant place, nice to have the other girls envious, respectful—

She tapped, with fingers slightly cold with nervousness, upon the door labeled "Private." As she opened the door to Mr. Canfield's loud bellow of invitation a girl almost collided with her, a girl leaving Mr. Canfield's private office with an open notebook in her hand.

"Mr. Canfield will see you now, Miss Cameron," the girl spoke in a lilting sweet voice, a voice that fairly tingled with triumph.

[illegible]

"Miss Cameron, I'm an old man and I don't want to work as hard as [illegible] the president of the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Company [illegible] under his [illegible] humorously. [illegible] about you [illegible] private secretary [illegible] young [illegible] a kick, a perfectly legitimate kick, as far as you are concerned, and you have a right to know my reasons for giving the [illegible] job [illegible] and dignity [illegible] incompetent and ridiculously [illegible]."

He paused and Vera knotted her hands tightly in her lap.

"I'm president of the company, as you know, Miss Cameron, but I don't do a whale of a lot of work [illegible] of high [illegible] dodgers [illegible] dictate [illegible] letters [illegible] Most of my appointments are with the [illegible] I have the business interviews with the [illegible] What girl [illegible] could possibly keep a human dynamo like your boss [illegible] me into doing a lot of [illegible] with the department heads just to keep [illegible] busy [illegible] keep you busy. [illegible] said I'm getting to be an old man [illegible] the way [illegible] me the little Rosemary Fitch would have done," he grinned at her.

She gasped, started to speak, but Canfield raised a broad, fat hand at her.

"Just one of the duties of my private secretary," he chuckled. "You can see that you wouldn't suit at all. I play golf a lot and I like to have [illegible]

[illegible] Jerry Macklyn [illegible]

"[illegible] Macklyn?" Vera was guilty of interrupting her employer again.

[illegible] advertising manager [illegible] Don't think I haven't appreciated [illegible] Miss [illegible] Benham [illegible] Benham says he'll give [illegible] Macklyn. In fact he asked for you."

"Asked for me?" Vera repeated.

"Not by name," Canfield disappointed her by saying, "but he asked for the smartest girl in the organization, the girl who knew the most about Peach Bloom Cosmetics and the business in general. Benham and I both agreed that he meant you and no one else."

"Thank you, Mr. Canfield," Vera stammered. "Do I report to him this morning?" Her voice was eager, girl[illegible] her normally [illegible] mouth [illegible] at the [illegible] old man opposite her.

"Run along. He's waiting for you in Jim Stafford's office, of course. And by the way, the job carries fifty a week, the same as Miss Fitch will get. Feeling better?" he asked in a kindly voice, unlike his usually hearty boom.

"Shall I—shall I be allowed to write advertising copy, too?" Vera quavered happily. "I've been taking an advertising course at Columbia two evenings a week, as well as an extension course in chemistry."

Canfield's laugh boomed out. "I'd have bet that you had," he assured her, but his eyes were very kind. "Sure, you'll be allowed to try your hand at copy writing. Macklyn thinks of that [illegible]. Now run along and don't think too harshly of the old man."

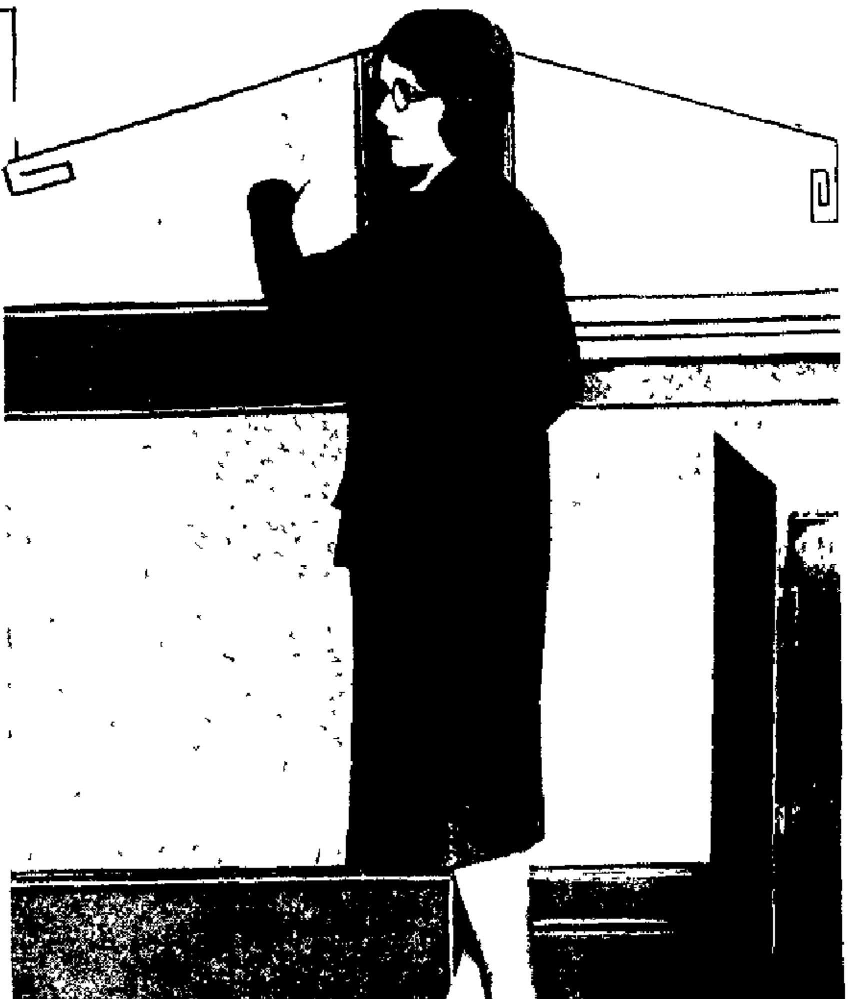
Vera could have [illegible] him, but she merely thrust out a cold, timid hand. She almost ran from the office, did not cast a single curious glance at Rosemary Fitch, who was applying lipstick.

Jerry Macklyn! Jerry Macklyn! [illegible] He had asked for her. What if he didn't know her personally? He knew the kind of person she was, had wanted her above all others. Oh, it did pay to study and work hard. What a nice name he had! Jerry Macklyn! Would he be a fussy sort of person, as Aunt [illegible] would say? Maybe—she paused outside the door which was still lettered "Mr. Stafford," in honor of Jerry Macklyn's predecessor, and for a moment she thought wildly of rushing back down the corridor to Rosemary Fitch's office to ask her the loan of her powder puff and her lipstick. But she knew that she couldn't do that—that [illegible] to ridicule [illegible] in the rest room—

With head high, and a strange new hope in her heart she lifted her hand to knock on the inner door beyond which Jerry Macklyn was no doubt awaiting her impatiently.

Jerry Macklyn has an amazing proposition and Vera gets the shock of her life, in the next chapter.

With a strange new hope in her heart, she lifted her hand to knock on the door beyond which Jerry Macklyn was no doubt awaiting her impatiently.



SPORT SAUCE

BY DICKY

IF we listen to the managers of the bruisers who will do some [illegible] at the Yankee Stadium tonight the other of the pair of Jacks will be smelling the rosin before the affair has gone very far.

Both of the managers and Sharkey himself have been doing a lot of [illegible] wagging and everyone is absolutely certain that his man is going to win. Sharkey of course believes that he will be the next contender for the heavyweight crown.

Dempsey has let his manager Leo Flynn do his boasting and predicting and for the most part has kept a silent tongue. He has come forward with the declaration however that he believes that this boy Sharkey who is saying that he will plant a series of left hooks to ex-champ's ruddy complexion until he goes unknowingly into space from the floor is not such a soft baby at that.

The former champ thinks that the mauling will be one of keen competition while the contender in his training period has portrayed a cocky attitude which has revealed his attitude toward the battle.

Fighters of the present day and others who ought to know say the event will be one of the toughest maulings in the history of glove pushing.

Stacking of the two opponents today reveals that both have an equal chance in spite of rumors in our opinion. It is true that the veteran Jack Dempsey is getting old and soon will be out of competition on account of gray hair. Jack however packs a wallop and a mean one that has laid many a brave fighter low.

On the other hand Sharkey is in condition young and ambitious. His training camp K. O.'s have been hard to remember and all of his sparring partners are in good health today.

With one Jack still packing a terrific wallop and the other in condition to take a great deal of punishment the fans ought to get their money's worth at the fight which has an excellent chance of going 10 rounds or even better.

WHEN the former champion settles up his bills for the training period at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. he will find a little note representing the charges for telephoning his wife Estelle Taylor Dempsey every night.

Estelle who married Jack when he was champion and in his prime is in Los Angeles at the present time and even though she won't see the fight is keeping in touch with her battling husband's condition. The bill amounts to about $1,000.

WITH the first place in Sunday School Loop No. 2 now in the hands of one team for the first time in several weeks a stiff battle for the championship of the league is foreseen before the final match is played.

Lutherans, the leaders, jumped out of a slump Tuesday night just in time to capture a game from the Presbyterian squad in the eleventh inning. The Baptist team, too, may wake up and get busy before cups are awarded.

New York, July 21—Jack Kearns picks Sharkey.

The ex manager of Jack Dempsey could see today no other result than a defeat tonight for the man he managed into the heavyweight championship. Just where on the broad seas of matrimony and when he harrassed with deputy sheriffs before Dempsey's losing fight in Philadelphia with Gene Tunney last September.

Dempsey and Leo Flynn played clock golf in the twilight for a dollar a hole. That was one Dempsey couldn't win. Any time they lay the money on the line Leo never goes wrong.

Odds of 2 to 1 on Sharkey were quoted around the garden. As soon as that word went [illegible] a lot of smart boys began [illegible] the Shark [illegible] at the price.

Rickard is a promoter who never rests. Even in the last 24 hours of hysteria on the big fight he found time to closet himself with Pete Reilly and Al Mayer. The result probably will be a meeting between Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, and Paulino late in August.

Newspaper experts having taken one on the chin with Dempsey's collapse last year refused to take the other side of the fence today. The preponderance of literary judgment on the outcome was distinctly with Sharkey.

"Well, we've had our ticket scandal," observed Rickard in a reminiscent vein today. "Now let's trot out the old reliable and have Abe Attell and Arnold Rothstein putting over a fast one in the betting."

A lot of bozos ganged the Garden yesterday expecting to see Sharkey weigh. He didn't. They will gang the boxing commission headquarters today expecting to see the weighing in. Wrong again. It will be held at the Garden, according to a semi-official tip.

C., D. & M. Outfit Carries Battle To Nine Innings Before Losing to Shovels

Fails in Effort To Break Winning Streak of Marion Steam Shovel Nine in Game Which Ends 1 to 0; Erie Shops Win and Lose with Osgood

AFTER carrying the fray for nine innings before a score was made the C. D. & M. baseball team last night lost a battle in trying to break the winning streak of the league leading Marion Steam Shovel Shop nine in the feature attraction of the postponed Industrial Loop games last night. The score ended 1 to 0.

By losing in the only other contest in the league last night Erie Shops were accompanied into second place in the standings of the league with the Tap & Die outfit which won over the Marion Packing Co. on a forfeit. The victory of the Osgood team 4 to 2 over the Erie brought that squad into another tie for third position with losing C. D. & M. band.

The remaining teams stayed in the same position in the standing as a result of the postponement of the Fairfield-Huber game and the forfeit of the Packing Co. nine.

Tight Contest

The battle staged by the C. D. & M. and Steam Shovel outfits was one of the tightest contests to be played on the local diamonds this season in the local loops. Although the traction nine succeeded in landing seven hits and the league leaders six no scores were made until late first half of the ninth frame.

Little hit safely at 1 after two of the Shovel players flied out. Montville and [illegible] ... brought the player into home by successive singles. Halleman tossed for the winners and Seckenberger for the losers.

Osgood took one on the chin when the Erie nine put two runs across the rubber in the very first inning and a comeback in the same inning by the Shovel team fell short one run of tying the score.

ERIE SHOPS WIN PROTESTED TILT

The last 1½ innings of a protested game between the Osgood and the Erie Shops nines of May 26 were played last night and the game ended in a victory for the railroad team 8 to 6.

The game was protested by the Osgood and the commission ordered the last of the game to be played over.

LOCAL NEWSPAPERMEN TO RIDE IN DERBY

Five Marionites Will Enter National Motorcycle Contest

Five newspapermen of this city will ride a Harley Davidson motorcycle in the second annual International Newspapermen's Motorcycle Derby to be held in Marion and other principal cities of the United States next Saturday.

The purpose of the annual contest is to determine the most economical rider of a single cylinder motorcycle in the country and it will be contested only by employes of newspaper plants.

Fred Custer, winner of fourth place in the contest last year in the national competition and winner of first place in this district will again ride with the group selected from Marion newspapermen. Other participants will include Don McClintock, Thomas Scott, Marion O. Chenoweth and Sale Fate.

In winning the ribbon position in the contest last year in which there were 980 participants Custer drove 47½ miles on a quart of gasoline or about 175 miles on a gallon. The winner of the contest drove his machine 46 miles on a quart of fuel.

First prize will be $100 and a silver loving cup. Second prize is $50, third $25, fourth $15 and the next 50 winners will be awarded gold medals.

PIRATES ON TOP AGAIN AS GIANTS BEAT CUBS

Pittsburgh Splits Double Bill and Leads Loop with One Point

New York, July 21—Although both clubs are being buffeted about like cripples at a bargain sale, the Pirates and Cubs are continuing their close battle for National League supremacy with the lead changing hands almost daily. Today the Pirates are in front by a margin of one point as they split a twin bill with the Phillies yesterday while the Cubs lost to the Giants 5 to 4.

Pinch Hitter Ott's single with the bases jammed in the ninth won for the Giants and gave them the series four games to two. Jackson hit two home runs making it four during the series.

Old Clarence Mitchell of the Phils won a 4 to 3 duel from Joe Dawson, Pittsburgh's high priced rookie. In the nightcap five successive hits by Lloyd Waner featured Pittsburgh's 6 to 5 victory.

Both the Cardinals and the Robins got grand pitching in a double header in Brooklyn. Jess Petty won a 2 to 1 decision from Flint Rhem in the opener on Deberry's triple.

Jakie May of the Reds subdued the Braves 4 to 2 but in the nightcap Joe Genewich nipped Cinci's winning streak by limiting the Hendrick boys to four hits and winning 2 to 1.

In the only game played in the American League the Senators whipped the White Sox 3 to 2.

PAUL HUNT TAKES SWIM HONORS AT CAMP UHLER

Local Youth Places in All Events of Water Competition

Marion to Battle With Oberlin Motors Sunday

THE Oberlin Motors of Oberlin, who boast of a record of eight victories and one defeat so far this season, will be opponents of the Marion Athletic baseball squad at Lincoln Park Sunday afternoon.

With the scalps of several of the best independent traveling nines in the state under its belt the game with the Oberlin team Sunday should reveal to Marion fans one of the games to be played at the local diamonds this year.

Included on the visiting team's list of victories are games of the Flynn Bickering aggregation which overcame the Marion team here at the start of the season 1 to 2 and the National nine Class A champions of Lorain. The Oberlin team has also defeated Brooklyn Entertainers, Medina, Elyria Eagles, Amherst City team, Shelby and the Sandusky Eagles.

One Defeat

The lone defeat of the team was at the hands of the Swinehart Tires of Akron with a score of 5 to 3. A. Wragg and Bartlome are twirlers for the team.

In spite of the stinging defeat of the local squad at the hands of the Pittsburgh Homestead Grays last Sunday the Marion nine are undergoing hard practice to make the game Sunday a real contest.

The same lineup that has won eight ball games and lost but four this year will probably be again stacked up against the visiting team. Main or [illegible] will do the mound work for the Marion squad.

Anthony Cleaners Arrange Series of Benefit Games With Mansfield All-Stars

Proceeds of Contests in This City Will Go To Defray Expenses of Kiwanis Children's Health Camp; Local Squad Never Defeated

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed for a series of five baseball games to be played between the Anthony Cleaners of this city and the Mansfield Journal Dixie All-Stars for the benefit of the Kiwanis Children's Health Camp in the near future.

The first game of the series will take place at 6:15 o'clock next Monday night at Lincoln Park diamonds. The following Monday night the game will be played at Mansfield with the third game of the series in this city Aug. 5 and the fourth in Mansfield Aug. 17. Diamonds for the fifth contest will be decided at a later date.

Considered Best

The Anthony Cleaners, which is generally considered as the best recreational baseball team in Marion, has never been defeated since its organization three years ago. Two games however were tied last year with the Mansfield team with whom the series will be played.

Both of the tie games with the Mansfield squad occurred at the Central Junior High School diamonds last year and both of the games went 10 innings without either team scoring.

Granger asks no odds because of its popular price

KENTUCKY'S finest Burley tobacco goes into Granger—selected leaf, grown in the fertile limestone soil of the Blue Grass country; and fully matured, rich, ripe and mellow!

It is processed by an old-time tobacco secret, Wellman's method, which seals the flavor in; and securely packed in heavy foil instead of costly tin.

A quality tobacco at ten cents!

GRANGER ROUGH CUT

The half-pound vacuum tin is forty-five cents. The foil pouch, sealed in glassine, is ten cents.

BACK MISERABLE WITH SHARP PAIN ACROSS KIDNEYS

Suffered Rheumatism Also; This Marion Citizen Tells How Konjola Relieved Years of Health Trouble.

"The greatest medicine for kidney trouble and rheumatism that was ever sold in a drug store—that is my opinion of Konjola after my experience with this medicine, and I want to indorse it to the public," said Mr. Arthur Finn, well known Marion citizen, living at Roth Avenue, this city, while talking just a few days ago with the Konjola Man at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., Marion, who is meeting large crowds in [illegible] every day and explaining this surprising new medicine.

"I had been suffering for years," continued Mr. Finn, "without ever finding a medicine that would really help me until recently I got this new Konjola, and now the aches and pains are gone and I am feeling fine in every way.

"My kidneys were giving me a lot of trouble and I had to get out of bed at all hours of the night. Sharp pains centered in my back and this made me so miserable I could hardly stand it. I would get dizzy, staggering spells and had to hold on to something to keep from falling. I finally developed rheumatism and for the past ten or twelve years I have always had this trouble until Konjola began its work on my system.

"I had these attacks of rheumatism [illegible] in the last two years and I was getting worse each time. I had to give up my work and got to the point where I could barely walk by myself. I found myself a regular shut-in. I very seldom left the house. [illegible] [illegible] I came [illegible] always have this [illegible]

Behind the Screen

Greta Nissen

Greta Nissen, who just signed a long contract for screen production, hails from Norway. She is one of the finest screen contributions coming from the old world. "Beggar on Horseback" is one of the pictures in which she appeared.

Of course, under all conditions youth is apt to be foolish and will evidence lack of experience. Especially some young film aspirants exhibit lack of judgment. They think [illegible] that is all [illegible] to attain screen fame is to vamp their way to stardom with their physical charm. They find themselves sorely disillusioned. Beauty alone counts very little on the screen, but intelligence, natural ability to act, poise and mental balance are the qualities eagerly sought for.

The first Paramount picture co-starring Chester Conklin and W. C. Fields will be "The Side Show," from a story written by Perry Heath, scenarist, and Donald Davis, son of Owen Davis, dramatist.

Galli-Curci, operatic star, is reported to have turned down $20,000 a week for 10 weeks for a picture house tour. The song bird said the strain on her voice would be unbearable, 'tis said.

Picture newsreel agencies are spending more than $30,000 a month on air [illegible] a Los Angeles dispatch says.

Broadway's newest and largest sign has been planned for "Wings," aviation picture scheduled for a run at the Criterion theatre. A sky battle in lights with planes falling under fire is the design.

Bebe Daniels, after completing her work in "Swim Girl Swim," the picture in which Gertrude Ederle appears, will be cast in a picture called "She's a Sheik."

That's [illegible] I did And [illegible] at me I did not have grey [illegible] I broke my hair till after [illegible] And I thought [illegible] till after [illegible] got [illegible] I said If you were me [illegible] marry Feenie or Younies [illegible] it and chewed [illegible] and then he said I certainly [illegible] I thought that over quite a [illegible] then I said You think it [illegible] all right to marry Younies [illegible] will be all right he said [illegible] you will wish you had married [illegible] Then do you think I ought [illegible] Feenie I asked him If [illegible] you will always wish [illegible] married Younies When [illegible] I said As soon as I can earn enough money to give her [illegible] one watts There isn't [illegible] he said Then I [illegible] from the barn and [illegible] and the bunch had [illegible] the alley

I did [illegible] anything to the bunch about what my grandfather had been talking about We took Butch's little brother to the pasture with us and made a raft out of fence posts and boards and put him on it in the creek and then we ran all the way to the fence to reach him when he floated past only he struck a rock and fell off and laid in the thin water on his stummick hollering So we had to take his clothes off and dry them in the sun and he got sunburnt and mosquito bit quite a lot And Maggie come before the clothes was dry and said we ought to be ashamed Girls are not so very polite A fella has got to have some fun

You think it would be all right to marry Younies?"

Peter's Adventures

A Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A BOY'S FRIEND AND A BEETLE'S FOE

"This is certainly a fine day. Two [illegible]" buzzed a voice close by Peter's ear. "Why, its high noon [illegible] yet there are dewdrops glistening on the baby blades of grass. [illegible] is working hard today [illegible] though [illegible] will grow [illegible] that it will take him no time [illegible] things up—he'll finish his [illegible] soon after dawn and then for the rest of the day he will make things [illegible] early folk. Although to tell the truth I like the heat me. If I was thinking of the pond people when I spoke."

This was quite a long speech for any of the outdoors people to make at one time and Peter turned around three times before he could find out who it was. Then he discovered a little lady in a spotted read coat sitting upon a branch of pussywillow and he gave a [illegible]

"SUN IS WORKING HARD TODAY" BUZZED A VOICE CLOSE TO THE BOY'S EAR

"Why Lady Bird you dear old friend! Where did you come from and how long have you been here?" [illegible] "I am so glad to see you. How have you been since we last met?"

"Splendid thank you" replied Lady Bird [illegible]. "Nothing dreadful has happened. My house never caught on fire after all and my children grew well and big and then flew away and left me alone. I always had the fear that I would one day leave them alone. And my worry for nothing! Funny isn't it? Oh well summer will soon be here and I shall have another little family to take care of. My long sleep did me good I am sure of it and I simply can't tell you how glad I am that spring is here. If I had a voice I should certainly sing for joy!"

Peter chuckled.

"Froggie had no voice but he sang just the same and for the very same reason that you would if you could." [illegible] "Both of you are happy because the winter has gone."

At these words Lady Bird gave a [illegible]

"[illegible]—do you know Froggie?" [illegible] fluttered nervously.

"[illegible] I do. He is a nice old fellow and I am on my way to the pond to visit him right now. Want to come along with me? I am sure he would be glad to see you."

"No doubt he would. I am sure of it," agreed Lady Bird and the Boy noticed that the little beetle seemed to be shivering.

"Froggie would gobble me up in a second if only he could get his long tongue upon me. Go visit him? I rather guess not. Why, Frog is one of my worst enemies. He has been the death of more than one of my friends.

"Well I remember one day last summer [illegible] and I (Lady Bird was my dear sister) were flying over the pond. [illegible] suddenly dropped low—why, I never knew and—Bob Snap! Out of the clear water came a knobbed head out ran a limber tongue that caught and held sister struggle as she would to get away and down Froggie's throat went tongue sister and all. No sire! I wouldn't go near that pond for anything in the world. The very idea makes me want to fly just as far as I can go—away from any damp marshy slime where a Frog or a Toad might lurk!"

And up into the topmost branches of the pussywillow tree darted Lady Bird.

In the 16th century letter carriers in Germany were equipped with stilts to increase their speed.

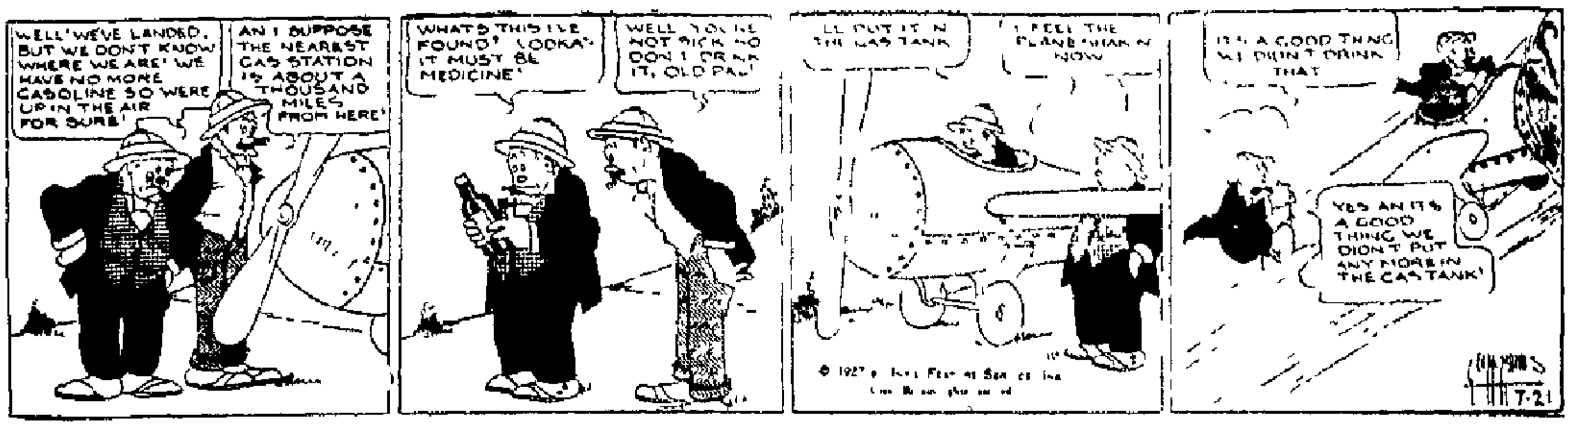
BRINGING UP FATHER

BY GEORGE McMANUS



WELL! WE'VE LANDED, BUT WE DON'T KNOW WHERE WE ARE! WE HAVE NO MORE GASOLINE SO WE'RE UP IN THE AIR FOR SURE!
AN' I SUPPOSE THE NEAREST GAS STATION IS ABOUT A THOUSAND MILES FROM HERE!
WHAT'S THIS I'VE FOUND? LOOKA! IT MUST BE MEDICINE!
WELL YOU'RE NOT SICK - SO DON'T DRINK IT, OLD PAL!
I'LL PUT IT IN THE GAS TANK
I FEEL THE PLANE SHAKIN' NOW
IT'S A GOOD THING WE DIDN'T DRINK THAT
YES AN IT'S A GOOD THING WE DIDN'T PUT ANY MORE IN THE GAS TANK!

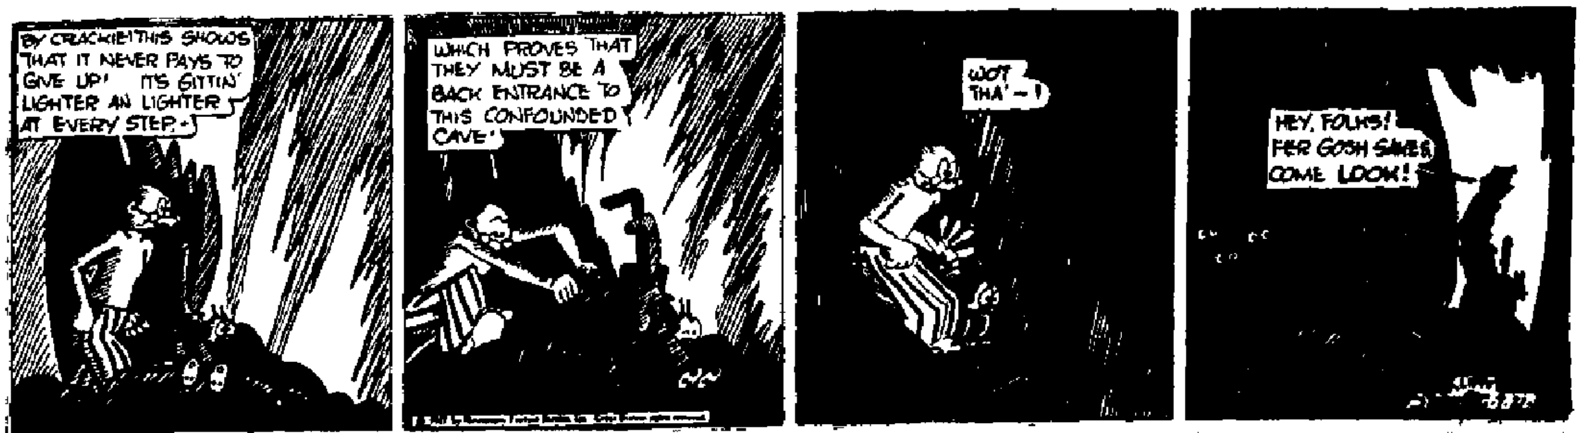
POLLY AND HER PALS

ASHUR MAKES A DISCOVERY

BY CLIFF STERRETT



BY CRACKIE! THIS SHOWS THAT IT NEVER PAYS TO GIVE UP! IT'S GITTIN' LIGHTER AN' LIGHTER AT EVERY STEP - WHICH PROVES THAT THEY MUST BE A BACK ENTRANCE TO THIS CONFOUNDED CAVE!
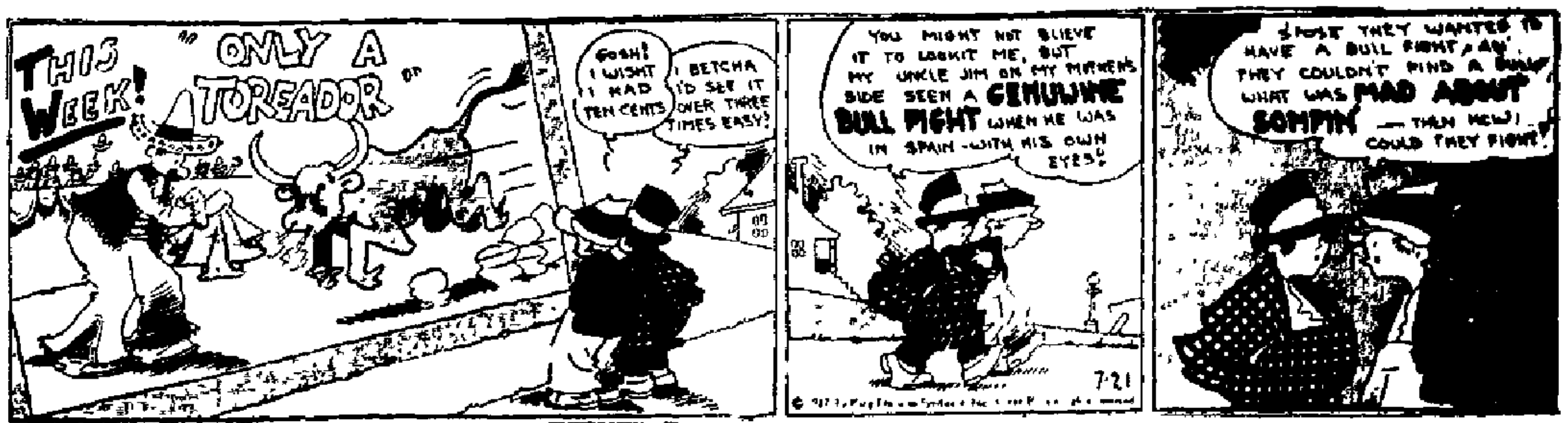
WOT THA' - !
HEY, FOLKS! FER GOSH SAKES COME LOOK!
STERRETT

JUST KIDS

BY AD CARTER



THIS WEEK!
"ONLY A TOREADOR" OR
GOSH! I WISHT I HAD TEN CENTS
I BETCHA I'D SEE IT OVER THREE TIMES EASY!
YOU MIGHT NOT BLIEVE IT TO LOOKIT ME, BUT MY UNCLE JIM ON MY MITHER'S SIDE SEEN A GENUWINE BULL FIGHT WHEN HE WAS IN SPAIN - WITH HIS OWN EYES!
S'POSE THEY WANTED TO HAVE A BULL FIGHT AN' THEY COULDN'T FIND A BULL WHAT WAS MAD ABOUT SOMPIN' — THEN HOW! COULD THEY FIGHT?

ing. At another game in the season last year, at Mansfield, the local squad turned in a 10 to 7 victory over that aggregation.

The play of the Mansfield team is featured by the battery, Hannan, catcher and Shultz, pitcher, who has the reputation of having one of the speediest balls in the kitten ball game today. Schultz pitched the same team to two victories over the Marion Star nine last year.

Team Named

Ret Rice, Bacon or Loomire will be on the mound for the Marion team and Paul Rice or Patience will do the catching. All of the local twirlers are strike-out artists.

The probable line-up of the Marion squad for the first game Monday follows: William Hubbard, first base; Walter Hubbard, second base; Gibson or Parr, third base; Siefert, short stop; and Hinton, Glen Price and Ed Trost, outfielders.

All of the proceeds of the games played in Marion will go for the improvement of the Kiwanis camp. A similar game between the two teams was sponsored by the Kiwanians last year.

THREE FINED

Columbus Youths Convicted of Stealing Auto Tire

Evidence given by Charles Miller and James Dennis who testified that they saw the three remove a tire and conceal it in the ditch, resulted in the conviction in municipal court this morning of Frank Dodson, Ike Fahs and Thomas Maupin, three Columbus youths who were arrested Sunday night charged with stealing a tire from the automobile belonging to Ralph Lenhle following a collision on the Berrymuh.

Dodson, who it is said, removed the tire, was fined $25 and costs and his companions each drew fines of $10 and costs. Maupin paid his fine and was released. Miller testified that the men removed the tire and concealed it in the ditch after which they drove north but returned in a short time and seeing the men at the wreck proceeded toward the city.

ORDINANCE NO. 2776

TO AMEND ORDINANCE NO. 2763, BEING FOR THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS FOR THE CITY OF MARION, OHIO, FOR THE PURPOSE OF PURCHASING A FIRE ENGINE AND ATTENDANT EQUIPMENT.

Be it ordained by the Council of the City of Marion and State of Ohio, two-thirds of the members elected thereto concurring, that paragraphs No. 2 and Sections 1, 2, and 3 of said Ordinance No. 2763 be amended to read as follows:

Paragraph No. 2—Whereas, this Council estimates that interest from the 1st day of July, 1927, to the 1st day of September, 1927, in the sum of One Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars ($125.00) will be required.

Section 1—That for the purpose of raising money for the purchase of a fire engine and attendant equipment for the fire department of the City of Marion, Ohio, it is hereby declared to be necessary to issue and sell, and there shall be issued and sold bonds of said City in the sum of Fifteen Thousand One Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars ($15,125.00).

Section 2—Said bonds shall be of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000.00) each, except the first one, which shall be of the denomination of One Hundred and Twenty-five Dollars ($125.00); shall be dated not later than July 1, 1927, shall draw interest at the rate of five per cent (5%) per annum, payable on the 1st day of March and September in each year, upon presentation and surrender of interest coupons to be attached to said bonds bearing the facsimile signature of the Auditor, and shall be due and payable as follows:

2 bonds due September 1, 1928;
2 bonds due September 1, 1929;
2 bonds due September 1, 1930;
2 bonds due September 1, 1931;
2 bonds due September 1, 1932;
2 bonds due September 1, 1933;
2 bonds due September 1, 1934;
1 bond due September 1, 1935;
1 bond due September 1, 1936.

Section 3—Said bonds shall be prepared by the City Solicitor, be signed by the Mayor and City Auditor, sealed with the City seal and recorded in the office of the Sinking Fund Trustees; shall express upon their face the purpose for which they are issued, and the fact that they are issued pursuant to law and Ordinance No. 2763 and this amending Ordinance No. 2776; shall be payable, both principal and interest, at the office of the Treasurer of the City of Marion; shall be issued and sold under the direction of the finance committee of Council, and shall be numbered consecutively from one to sixteen, both inclusive.

This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed, July 11, 1927.

E. M. MURPHY,

Approved, July 12, 1927.

Scheduled Over WJZ

SILENT STATIONS FRIDAY NIGHT

CENTRAL — WSM, WLW, KRPC, WCRD, KLDS, WOI, WEBE, KFUO, WSM

EASTERN — WFI, WIP, WREO, WHAZ, WGES, WPG, WBOQ.

A good, old-fashioned song of the "barber shop chord" variety, "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," will be included in the program to be presented by the Bonnie Laddies and broadcast on the Blue Network through station WJZ at 9 o'clock, Friday night.

The songsters will also give several other selections now popular on the stage and with other musical institutions. "There's Something Nice About Everyone" and "College Life" will be included in the program.

Katherine Palmer, a soprano, new to radio listeners will be the soloist in the "Yesterthoughts" program to be placed on the air by WJZ at 7 o'clock. The program will be composed of classical selections.

The Royal Stenographers will make another appearance before the microphone through the Blue Network at 7:30 o'clock, Friday night, in a series of vocal solos, accompanied by an orchestra.

John Finnegan, popular lyric tenor and soloist at a cathedral at New York City, will be heard again on WEAF of the Red Network at 8 o'clock Friday night. He has given concerts all over the United States.

A half-hour program, made up entirely of selections of Victor Herbert, will again be given to radio fans at 8 o'clock Friday night on the Red Network. The program will be under the direction of Harold Stanford.

Dayton and Toledo Men Gain Releases from Penitentiary

Columbus, July 21. Gov. [illegible] has paroled from Ohio Penitentiary [illegible] Swisher and [illegible] Swisher, brothers, both of Dayton, and [illegible] Mark, Toledo, [illegible]

The Swisher brothers were sentenced Feb. 16, 1925, to serve from 7 to 10 years following conviction of embezzling about $9,000 from 26 persons. Their liberation was conditioned upon their endeavoring to pay back this money so far as possible. The common pleas judge and prosecutor of Montgomery county, it was announced, recommended that the Swisher brothers be liberated.

Mark was received at the penitentiary Aug. 16, 1922, to serve from 17 to 25 years. It was stated that trial Judge Byron Ritchie [illegible] informed the governor that Mark was a victim of mistaken identity.

PERMITS ISSUED HERE FOR THREE $3,000 HOMES

Building activities which have been sluggish for the past several weeks were stimulated yesterday when C. A. Curtis, local contractor, was issued permits by City Clerk Keller for three $3,000 dwellings. All three will be of frame construction and one will be built on Girard av., one on Marion av. and one on the corner of Girard and Marion avs. Permits were also issued to Mrs. Ida M. Johnson, 611 E. George st., for a porch to cost $50 and to Mary and Jerry Klank, who will remodel a dwelling and garage on Mound st. at a cost of $400.

MOTORIST BARRED FROM DRIVING CAR 30 DAYS

F. H. Gillette, W. Center st., who was arrested last Saturday night on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated after his car crashed into a machine being driven by Ralph Williams, Larue av., will not be permitted to drive an automobile for 30 days, it was ruled by Municipal Judge W. H. Martin yesterday afternoon. He was also given a fine of $50 and costs which was later suspended by the court upon information as to the financial condition of his family.

CHARGE WITHDRAWN

An affidavit charging him with giving a check when he did not have sufficient funds to meet the payment, filed against F. F. Bert by Fetz Brothers in municipal court yesterday, was later withdrawn when the check was made good and it was explained by Bert that he issued the check thinking there was sufficient funds in the bank.

WILLIAM C. LONGFELLOW STARTS TERM IN PRISON

Man Convicted as Member of Farm Robbery Band Taken to Columbus

William C. Short, Longfellow, [illegible] convicted as a member of the farm robbery gang which operated in Marion County for about a year, was taken to Columbus yesterday to begin serving his [illegible] penitentiary sentence. He made the trip in custody of Sheriff James A. Deal and Deputy Sheriff [illegible] Ireland.

Longfellow was removed to the penitentiary from the county jail following receipt of notice from the court of appeals sustaining his conviction in the court of common pleas here. The defense attorney, Frances Durbin of [illegible], Longfellow had filed an appeal asserting that his conviction was due to prejudice and passion on the part of the jury and also to unfairness in the judge's charge.

At Appeals Court

The case was argued before the court of appeals last week by Longfellow's attorney and Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedeman representing the state. In affirming the jury verdict, the appellate court stated that it found no error or evidence of prejudice in the proceedings.

Longfellow, whose home is located on a farm a short distance north of LaRue, was convicted of receiving stolen property. Evidence showed that he disposed of livestock and other projects stolen by the robber band. He has a wife and four children.

Ten men were arrested in connection with the farm investigation which was conducted by Sheriff Deal. Eight have either pleaded guilty or been found guilty in jury trials. Six of these are serving time in the penitentiary or Mansfield reformatory and two were given suspended sentences. Two others are awaiting action of the next grand jury.

If you had your friends entirely to suit you, maybe you wouldn't suit them.

COMMISSIONERS CONSIDER ROAD IMPROVEMENTS

Two Important Highway Projects and 12 Bridge Proposals Discussed

Two important road improvement projects and plans for repair and improvement of 12 bridges in the county were up for consideration at today's meeting of the board of commissioners.

These were the following contracts for the bridge work which is estimated to cost $15,645.[illegible]

Estimated cost of six of the bridges is less than $1,000 each and six are in excess of $1,000. Contracts for the six figured at below $1,000 will be let Aug. 8 and the other six have been set for Aug. 15.

The largest contract will be for reconstruction of abutments and piers of a bridge on [illegible] No. 84, the estimated cost being $2,567.05. The smallest job is figured at $385.

Cost Above $10,000

Cost of the six jobs estimated at more than $1,000 each totals $10,0[illegible] and the six smaller contracts are figured at a total of $5,016.[illegible]

This is the largest amount of bridge improvement work authorized thus far this year. Other bridge repairs made up to this time have been almost entirely emergency work necessitated by damage from washouts.

Hearing on assessments to be made for construction of the [illegible] located in Marion, Scott, Grand Prairie and Claridon townships will take place at 1 o'clock the afternoon of Aug. 8, the commissioners decided today. This improvement, one of the largest planned in connection with the year's road program, is estimated to cost $26,0[illegible]

Hear Objections

At this afternoon's session the board convened to hear objections from property owners in connection with proposed improvement of the county line road between Crawford and Marion counties. Commissioners of the two counties recently organized to put through the improvement which has [illegible]

[illegible] in dispute was a con[illegible] between Aller and John D [illegible] over stone furnished Al[illegible] of the Delaware [illegible] Prospect township The [illegible] a bill for $3,806.00 for [illegible] Aller refused to pay [illegible] sufficient allowance had [illegible] made for weight of trucks [illegible] the stone

[illegible] dispute was pending pay[illegible] balance due Aller on the [illegible] amounting to $4,330.22 [illegible] up by injunction Aller brought suit against Owens and the members of the board of county commissioners to collect the final estimate

At the hearing testimony was introduced to show that the truck weights had not been computed correctly and that Aller was actually entitled to a reduction of the Owens bill

On the basis of this testimony Judge Sennell fixed $1,129.96 as the amount due Owens & Son The balance of the $4,330.22 will be paid Aller after court costs are paid He is to pay half of the costs and Owens & Son the other half

Answers Filed

Bernard Bramlage Christ Bramlage and Lulu Bramlage party defendants in a foreclosure suit brought by James M Berringer on a mortgage claim of $10,519.62 against land in Montgomery Township filed their answer in the court of common pleas yesterday

Through their attorneys Mouser, Young & Mouser they state that they conveyed the property involved in the suit to William A Stage who assumed all of the mortgage debt They ask that the land be sold and that in the event they are compelled to pay any of the debt that they be subrogated to all rights of the plaintiff against the defendant Stage

Files Motion

In the damage suit brought by Walter D Roberts as administrator of the estate of May Gladis Roberts against the C D & M Electric Co the defendant company has filed a motion asking a court order striking out a clause in the petition stating that the interurban car which struck an automobile in which Mrs Roberts was riding causing her death The motion is based on the contention that reference to the speed of the traction car estimated at 55 miles an hour is irrelevant and not an allegation of negligence The motion was filed by W P Moloney attorney for the C D & M

The C D & M also filed answer yesterday through Attorney Moloney in the suit for $25,436.57 brought by Mrs May Rich for injuries sustained when an automobile in which she and her husband were riding was struck by an interurban car at the Newmans crossing on Sept 5 1926 The answer denies all of the allegations and ask for dismissal of the suit

Hilton D LaRue defendant in a suit brought in behalf of Charles Mouser age five years by Frank Mouser as his next friend filed answer yesterday in which he denies all allegations and asks that the petition be dismissed

The suit is for $5,501.52 for injuries alleged to have been sustained by the Mouser boy when struck by an automobile driven by LaRue on Oct 18, 1926

Elsie Baker To Be Heard On Chautauqua Program

Perhaps the best known performer on this season's program for the Marion County Independent Chautauqua which opens Thursday afternoon July 28 at Garfield Park will be Elsie Baker, America's Own Contralto who will be heard with members of her company in a full program Friday night July 29 It goes without saying that every seat in the Chautauqua pavilion will be taken by the opening hour of 7.45 o'clock The artist together with her company will afford an evening of rare entertainment which will be one of the outstanding features of the week's program Admission to this concert will be 50 cents for a single admission or the program may be heard, in addition to 10 other companies of high rating, for the price of a chautauqua ticket two dollars

Miss Baker sings with equal facility in English French German and Italian is an accomplished poetess and so combines her abilities and interpretations that she is a constant inspiration to aspiring students She has appeared throughout the country with symphonies in operatic performances oratorio recitals and in concert work and her pleasing charm has won for her a large place in the hearts and estimation of music lovers wherever she has appeared She also is popular as an artist on the talking machine

Miss Baker was born in Philadelphia and received her entire musical education in the United States As a child she showed exceptional talent at the piano and until she was 16 years of age seemed destined to become a concert pianist The remarkable quality of her voice came to the attention of several noted singing masters who urged her to turn to the vocal art where she soon was recognized as the most noted singer of her native city

Extra Session of Congress Unlikely--Flood Howl Dies

Prevention Question Likely To Be Material for Long Wrangle

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON July 21—An extra session of congress beginning a month or two ahead of the regular program due to start Dec 5 is less likely now than it did earlier in the season

The main reason why one was urged was to take care of the Mississippi flood situation

As was to have been expected the clamor for it subsided as the flood began to subside

It was a popular thing for the politicians to howl at of right at the time but it lost its appeal as soon as the river gauges stopped recording rising water

IF ever a question promised to furnish raw material for an indefinitely prolonged meaningless wrangle and a final solution which won't solve anything it's the question of flood prevention when it does come up in the national legislature

Relief and rehabilitation discussions may arrive somewhere but it's more evident every day that nobody has a scheme to offer that will enable a good plumber to regulate the Mississippi and its tributaries as easily as the water's turned on and off and even controlled pretty promptly when a pipe burst in a fair sized apartment house

This thing never must happen again was the song they all sang while the overflow was on But the query How are we going to stop it no answers forthcoming

THE two big schools of thought are the Levee school—levees will do the business if they're high and strong enough—and the reservoir school—dam all the water up and only let it out to suit everybody's convenience

The trouble is that each school can prove the other school a lot of cuckoos

Then too there are plenty of engineers who laugh at both schools impartially and are in turn laughed at each by everybody else

The only outfit which never has been demonstrated all wet in its ideas is the one which declares floods are a visitation of providence and absolutely can't be prevented—and naturally nobody at all pays any attention to pessimists like such folks

WHILE congress probably won't meet in extra session, the senate and house committees on flood control will get together early in the fall and listen to experts—the ones who couldn't do anything with the last floods—for 10 or 12 weeks

In this way some sort of a bill probably will be licked into shape

The chances are it will be a hodgepodge of about two dozen different schools' ideas commingled, with due regard to spreading the money it will cost around where it will do most good to the greatest number—for political purposes

ULTIMATELY some sort of a bill—not necessarily the original one but one kind of a bill or another—will be adopted by congress

That's a practical certainty It isn't going to do to let this last flood pass into history without doing something about it Nobody knows what, but something

Whatever the bill provides for will be started on and how much of a success it turns out to be will depend on how long it happens to be before another record flood comes along and washes that improvement also on out into the Gulf of Mexico

In the meantime it will have put a billion or so of dollars in circulation, so somebody will get some good out of it anyway

PENNSYLVANIA USES DETOUR THROUGH HERE

Regular Run Through Forest Resumed as Tracks Are Repaired After Wreck

Railroads running through Marion lent a helping hand to the Pennsylvania Railroad in detouring passenger cars around the scene of train wreck at Forest yesterday morning

All passenger trains scheduled for the Ft Wayne division of the Pennsylvania Railroad were transferred at Upper Sandusky and run to Marion on the Hocking Valley Railroad From this city the trains were placed on the Erie tracks and moved to Lima where the trip was resumed on the Pennsy tracks

The Broadway Limited the crack flier of the Pennsylvania running from Chicago to New York passed through Marion early yesterday morning after being detoured in a similar manner as the rest of the trains

Freight trains of the Pennsylvania were transferred at Lima and brought to Marion on the Erie where they were run to Crestline a Pennsy terminal on the Big Four Railroad

Trains were run on regular schedule over the Fort Wayne Division through Forest today after repairs on the track had been completed and the wreck cleared from the road

Sets Record

For the third time in recent weeks the Western Region of the Pennsylvania Railroad has set up a record of 99.7 per cent on schedule passenger train performance July 5

A total of 307 trains were operated on the region during that day and all except one made scheduled time

Nine of the ten divisions had 100 per cent on schedule records and six divisions had perfect on time marks The on time record for July 5 in the Western Region was 97.7 per cent 300 of the 307 passenger trains having arrived on the dot

Another top-off day for passenger trains was July 10 none of the 10 divisions of the Western Region operated every train on schedule time The on-schedule percentage for the region on this day was 99 and the on time figure was 96.5

Special Train

A special train to be run from Marion at 1.30 o'clock Friday morning will pick up agents of the Erie Railroad who are expecting to attend the annual convention of the Erie System Railway Agents Association at Dayton this week end

It is expected that several local men will attend the meeting A L Conrad agent at the Erie Transfer is vice president of the association and will be present at the meetings

Rail Briefs

The regular excursion to Cedar Point will be resumed by the Pennsylvania Railroad next Sunday after the special train was not run last Sunday

The train will stop for passengers in Marion at 7.50 a m The return trip will be made from Sandusky at 6 o'clock Sunday night

CONDUCTS "ODDEST SCHOOL"

Mrs. Grace L. Bennett

Mrs. Grace L. Bennett of Jacksonville, Ill., conducts what has been called "America's oddest school." She has 1,700 pupils. She never has had a serious infraction of rules. She never has had to suspend a pupil. She never has had a tardy or truant pupil. She uses no books in the school, the whole scheme being vocational training. And every one of her pupils has been adjudged insane by Illinois authorities!

Several years ago a study of statistics showed that persons committed to the state insane hospital rarely ever got better. In fact, a large majority became steadily worse. Then the "hospital" was discontinued and a "school" substituted. Mrs. Bennett was employed to manage the educational end of the institution and now a sizable percentage recovers. These folk return to their former places of society.

KING MICHAEL

throne." She undoubtedly will wield great influence.

Flags are at half mast throughout Roumania. The nation is in mourning. Government offices are closed and special prayers were offered in the churches.

All Roumania is quiet. But troops are held in readiness at all strategic points in the event that discontented politicians or army officers friendly to former Crown Prince Carol might attempt a coup.

Carol, who renounced his rights to succession following a scandalous love affair, is in Paris. He will not return to attend the funeral. In fact he will not be allowed to enter the country.

Funeral Is Saturday

Arrangements for Ferdinand's funeral will be completed tomorrow. One of the first official acts of the council of the regency was to set Saturday as the date for the funeral.

The body will be interred in the mausoleum in Curtea De Arges where King Carol and Queen Elizabeth lie at rest.

The death of the king furnishes a background for rumors of plots and intrigues in a nation that is noted for its romantic politics.

Already martial law has been proclaimed. All along the frontier the garrisons have been reinforced.

Premier Bratiano, the political enemy of Carol, is exercising an iron hand to maintain order and to prevent revolutionary outbreaks. "There is a strong division in Roumania's political affairs. Carol has many supporters, especially in the army. But a great deal of this support arises not so much through friendship for Carol as it does through the opportunity it gives to upset the present regime in power.

Premier New Master

Jon Bratiano, the premier, and a master of the kind of politics best known in the Balkans is master of the situation at present. He has the support of Queen Marie. But he is opposed by a powerful group.

The possibility exists that discontented politicians may send a deputation to Paris appealing to Carol to return. In that event the Carolist movement would undoubtedly have the support of Alexandru Averescu, former premier and political foe of Bratiano.

Even while the wasted body of the old king, attired in the uniform of a general of the Roumanian army, lies in state in the Cotroceni Castle intrigue is at work.

There is little or no likelihood that communists will attempt to take advantage of the present excited state of the kingdom to make trouble.

Queen Is Popular

Whatever political developments take place here will have an effect upon the neighboring kingdom of Jugo-Slavia. The two countries are linked through intermarriage of the royal families.

Princess Marie, daughter of the late king, is the wife of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia.

Queen Marie, the widow, is popular with her people, especially the peasants and her deathbed fidelity to her husband has increased her prestige before the nation. She will play a strong role in any future political developments. It is believed that she prefers to have little Michael remain as king, for there are indications that Michael and the regency will prove more popular than Carol.

Carol during his tenure as crown prince showed himself to be more interested in pretty faces of women than he was in affairs of state.

HINT CAROL MAY TRY TO RE-ESTABLISH SELF

Paris, July 21—The influence of Madame Lupescu which caused Prince Carol to renounce his rights to the throne of Roumania, may force the exiled prince to attempt to re-establish his rights to the throne vacated by the death of King Ferdinand and now held by Prince Carol's five-year-old son.

This is the inference that may be drawn from a statement made today by Madame Lupescu to the International News Service.

Prince Carol had dictated a message to the world press. Madame Lupescu had been present while the message was being dictated and she followed the correspondent from the room, closed the door upon Prince Carol and whispered:

"Please say that statement comes from his majesty the king."

Carol Gives Statement

Madame Lupescu made no further statement but the plain inference was that she considers Prince Carol the rightful King of Roumania.

The statement which Prince Carol had tearfully dictated indicated no such belief on his own part. It follows:—

"Broken by sorrow I couldn't receive the press. I hope my friends of the press won't feel I am hostile towards them. I consider that in these moments the press ought to respect the sorrow of a son who feels deeply the personal loss of the father he loved and respected and the loss for the country he always loved so much."

Prince Carol informed the International News Service that in telegrams to his family he has expressed the wish to assist at the funeral. He has had no answers to those telegrams.

"I don't think I can get there," he said sorrowfully.

was located also proved futile. Careful inquiry made by the officer in that territory showed that no youngster answering to the description of Dane had lived there.

He has also intimated that he lived near Detroit and at Akron and as a result of these conflicting stories the officers are completely at sea in their investigation.

Bare-footed

When arrested the youngster was bare footed, his only wearing apparel being trousers and a waist. He was covered with grime and coal dust indicating that he had been riding freight trains at least several days.

His arrest here resulted from a message received from authorities at Akron where authorities had seen him on a westbound Erie freight.

The boy is courteous and polite in his conversation with officials and is of normal intelligence. He states that he has a fifth grade school education.

There are certain characteristics in his make-up and mannerisms which lead officials to believe that he may have been in some juvenile penal institution.

In one of the mystery boy's stories he says that he had been living near Detroit with a bachelor uncle, who ordered him away from home.

THREE MORE BOYS CAPTURED HERE

Three more youthful nomads were added to wards of local juvenile court officials yesterday afternoon. All were taken into custody in the railway yards when they arrived here on freight trains.

The youngest is John Beruhe, age 11, 172 Homestead st. Akron, who said that he ran away from home because his mother reprimanded him for going fishing against her wishes.

The others are Stanley Niedzielski, 12 and John Paolo, 16, who left their homes in Detroit together in search of adventure.

The two younger boys are at the Dunn Detention Home and Paolo is held at the city prison while authorities are getting in communication with their parents.

RIFT BETWEEN WHEELER AND OTHER DRYS SEEN

Believe Anti-Saloon League Head Is Losing Iron Grip on Organization

Washington, July 21.—Capital politicians were speculating today as to whether Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, is not losing the iron grip he has maintained on the dry organization for many years.

It has become evident that there is a rift in the organization, although to what degree is not apparent to observers. For the first time in months a division of opinion has been revealed between Wheeler and his chief lieutenants, Bishop James Cannon and Rev. Arthur J. Barton.

Cannon and Barton have collaborated in a statement sent broadcast through the south denying that Wheeler spoke for the league when declared recently that if the Democrats nominated Gov. Al Smith the "Dry Democrats" would be given an opportunity (presumably by the league) to vote for a man of their choice. This was interpreted as a direct threat to organize a dry Democratic party should Smith be nominated.

The Cannon-Barton statement set forth that in making this assertion Wheeler spoke "as an individual and not for the league." Their statement was issued, it was learned, as a direct result of the storm which the Wheeler declaration stirred up among southern Democrats. Many Democrats, even those of dry persuasion, resented what they interpreted as an attempt to "split the party" a year ahead of the nominating convention and league headquarters here have been flooded with protests.

the ex-champion's attempt to reassert himself.

Dempsey?

Every woman it seems is hoping against hope that the old king will reascend his throne for woman is a sentimentalist always and romance is her life.

But romance doesn't make the betting odds and the price on Dempsey against Sharkey today was a long one. Some even quoted it as long as 2 to 1.

Odds are made by men who try hard not to guess wrong and most of them remember the fact that Dempsey is 32 and Sharkey 24, that Dempsey has fought 11 and a fraction rounds since 1923 and Sharkey some 40 or less in the last nine months, that Dempsey has spent 12 lucid, cruel years in the ring and Sharkey three, that Dempsey never was good with a fast man and that Sharkey is all of that, and that while Sharkey has been none too impressive in training Dempsey actually was forced to the unprecedented action of abandoning nearly all his work six days before the fight.

Recall Last Fight

But most of all they remember the floundering, wallowing Dempsey of the Tunney fight last September, the Dempsey who landed one good punch in 10 rounds and then forgot to do anything about it. And they are asking themselves if such a man can be a great deal better for the passing of another year in his life. Some say yes and some say no, but none denies the fact that he must be considerably better in order to have a chance with any good heavyweight and Sharkey's successive fights with Harry Wills, Mike McTigue and Jim Maloney have seemed to indicate that he qualifies for that distinction.

These question will be answered out at the Yankee Stadium tonight. The main bout will go on at 10 o'clock eastern daylight time and if any more color may be added to an attraction involving the come back of a popular idol and the onrush of a garrulous, smart cracking young man who can fight, the boxing commission must get the credit. That august body has decreed that the noble gladiators must appear in trunks of high visibility and distinctive design in order that the cap in the sixtieth row may know immediately who is hit and by whom.

Variety of Colors

Dempsey's colors will be red and black with possibly an impromptu design over the eye, Sharkey will wear purple and blue on his trunks and possibly a permanent sock on his chin.

After a light dinner at a local country club Dempsey retired early and is said to have spent a restful night at Flynn's home to which he had retired to elude the process servers of his old manager, Jack Kearns. Sharkey, after indulging in light exercises and a poker game, slept at his local hotel.

Both indulged in short walks this morning and then rested while awaiting the official weighing in, which is an empty formality in any heavyweight bout. Sharkey expects to scale about 193 pounds and Dempsey more than 195.

After that there will be nothing for it but the long tedious trying vigil of those who await their fate. What will it be? It may be just another step toward the goal that now looms so large before the eager, lurking young man who was glad to swab a deck four years ago. Or it may mean that he must start anew as youth can and will.

To the beggar in purple, asking for his crust, it may mean a banquet. Or it may mean not even a crumb.

TO HONOR FLIERS

Washington To Greet Maitland and Hegenberger This Afternoon

Washington, July 21—The capital will pay tribute late this afternoon to the transpacific flyers, Lieuts. Lester Maitland and Alfred E. Hegenberger.

Secretary of State Kellogg, Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the army, and other government officials will be present at Bolling Field when the flyers arrive in a three-engined Fokker plane, similar to the one they flew to Honolulu. Summerall will present them citation certificates for their exploit.

Tonight the flyers will be guests of the National Aeronautical Association at a big subscription dinner.

tem is unusually interesting. It had its inception at a meeting of the local Kiwanis club held at Hotel Harding several months ago.

C. J. Burk, manager and chief engineer of the company, installed a receiving and amplifying set for the meeting, attaching a microphone to it in an adjoining room. Then the local club members heard what was supposed to be the program being given at the same day at the Kiwanis national convention in Atlanta, Ga. A phonograph placed in front of the microphone in the next room furnished music by a famous orchestra and this was followed by remarks by a noted Kiwanian.

Deception Complete

The deception was complete until the man at the microphone began to read messages from well-known local people, all of whom were in the audience listening to the program from Atlanta.

This unique entertainment feature gave W. E. Orcutt, principal of the Central Junior High School, an idea and he had a similar broadcasting system made for use in the school. It enables him to talk to pupils in 17 rooms at the same time.

The Orcutt idea was so unusual that it was described in newspaper accounts throughout the country and brought him numerous letters of inquiry. He referred these letters to the Van Bur[illegible] Co. and thus was started the company's new department for marketing broadcasting speaker systems.

Business Growing

A. A. Van Atta, president of the company, states that the business in all departments is growing steadily and that eventually it is expected to manufacture all of the equipment here. The plant located in the Schwinger building on S. Prospect st. is to be enlarged in the fall with 200 square feet of additional floor space. The working force will also be increased at that time.

Tonight there will be a public demonstration of the company's amplifier and long tone speaker, when returns from the Dempsey-Sharkey bout will be broadcast from the front of the Van Bur plant on Prospect st.

INJUNCTION RESTRAINS UNION INTERFERENCE

Luhrig Company Preparing To Open Mine on Non-Union Basis

Athens, July 21—By virtue of a temporary restraining order, issued by Common Pleas Judge L. G. Worstall here 84 officials and other members of the Ohio United Mine Workers today were enjoined from interfering with efforts being made by the Luhrig Collieries Co. to reopen their mine at Luhrig six miles west of here on a non-union basis.

The order, issued late Wednesday is to stand pending a hearing scheduled to take place next Monday.

Although the union miners are enjoined from entering upon or in property owned by the company, the court permitted six union miners to continue doing picketing activities about the mine.

In its petition the company told the court that a crowd of from 100 to 200 union miners and sympathizers had gathered daily at the mine interfering with clean up operations.

Coal strike conditions remained quiet today throughout the Hocking coal field. A number of coal mines are being picketed by union miners in an attempt to thwart clean up operations.

O. S. Newton, general manager, Sunday Creek Coal Co. here today declared that his company, which has extensive holdings in the Hocking field, will endeavor to start up at least two of its mines on a non-union basis. He said that, if the company's Ohio mines can not be operated at a profit, the company will abandon its holdings in the Buckeye state and take up new properties in the West Virginia non-union fields.

TREASURY TO TERMINATE ALL WHISKY PERMITS

Another Legal Battle in Prospect as Dr. Doran Announces Action

Washington, July 21—Another legal battle between consumers of industrial alcohol and medicinal whisky, and the government is in prospect as a result of the decision of the treasury to terminate all permits issued under the National Prohibition Act, Jan. 1.

Permittees will be required to make application for renewal of licenses establishing to the satisfaction of the prohibition bureau that they have observed the law and actually require the amount of alcohol or whisky they seek to withdraw.

Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, announced the new plan today, said that regulation 61, which governs the use of alcoholic liquors employed for industrial, scientific and medicinal purposes, is now being revised and with the exception of the sections relative to permits probably will go into effect Sept. 1.

After issuance of regulation 61 manufacturers will be given 30 days in which to conform to its provisions.

The regulations will provide for the annual renewal of all permits. This question already has been before the federal courts, several judges in the middle-west upholding the treasury in its contention for annual permits, while a New York court ruled adversely. After the adverse ruling the annual permit was dropped. The New York case probably will be appealed to the supreme court by the department of justice, the treasury feeling that to obtain satisfactory law enforcement the perpetual permit system must be abolished.

SEEK TRAIL OF BANDITS WHO ROBBED TREASURER

Sidney Official Tells Story of Kidnaping, No Witnesses to Act

Sidney, July 21—Authorities here today were seeking the trail of two bandits who kidnaped County Treasurer Alfonso Berry Wednesday afternoon and robbed him of $15,000 in cash and $25,000 in checks, the [illegible] receipts of county taxes.

According to the story Berry told he was accosted by two young men as he stepped from the courthouse at noon to deposit the day's tax receipts in a bank across the street. One of them pushed the muzzle of a pistol into his stomach and pushed him into a big automobile. He was whisked eight miles into the country on a lonely road and there blindfolded, bound and gagged and pushed from the machine.

Berry told authorities it took him more than two hours to loose his bonds and crawl to a farmhouse at Shelby, a mile from the scene of the reported robbery, and there gave warning of the robbery.

Berry will complete his service as county treasurer Aug. 1.

Authorities declare they have found none who saw Berry leave his office or who saw him enter the car with his reported assailants.

Permanent streets are a good investment—not an expense

Don't Let Your Community Make the Same Mistake

Within recent years many communities have made the mistake of paving their highways at what they considered a "bargain price." The taxpayers thought they would save thousands of dollars.

In many instances the maintenance has not only wiped out the hoped for saving, but has exceeded original cost. And in many cases also it has been necessary to build entirely new streets—of permanent construction.

There are communities, however, which know the cheapest is not always the best. Many of these also built streets several years ago. And they built for permanence with concrete.

Those concrete streets, built in accordance with approved standards of highway construction, are in as good condition today as when they were built.

Which of these communities will yours be?

Send today for our free illustrated booklet—"Concrete Streets for Your Town."

Divorce a Growing Evil.

Contemplation of Marion county's divorce court showing for the year ended June 30 can hardly be said to be pleasing In fact it's decidedly disconcerting One hundred and forty five divorce proceedings instituted during the twelve month period against seventy eight during the twelve months preceding it is bound to strike those who believe in the sanctity of the marriage relation as startling And the record of divorces granted during the two twelve month periods is still more pronounced During the twelve month period ended June 30 1926 forty six divorces were granted The divorces granted during the twelve-month period just closed the record shows numbered 100 In a word almost twice as many divorce proceedings were begun in Marion county during the year closed June 30 as were instituted during the preceding year while the divorces granted during the latter period were far over twice as many as were granted during the former

A well known divine recently expressed the view that the chief cause for the great increase in the number of divorce proceedings in [illegible] was the present day attitude of the [illegible] to marriages He held that by many [illegible] a fair proportion of those marrying [illegible] was no longer considered a holy in[illegible] but merely an agreement a con[illegible] experience has taught the American [illegible] easily be broken In his view [illegible] of many parties to the present day [illegible] I'll try it and if I'm not satisfied [illegible] get a divorce This attitude and the evil thing that the pursuit of alimony has become he holds in large degree responsible for the great increase in divorce cases an evil which calls for speedy correction

Uniformed divorce laws more judgment and justice in awarding alimony the restriction of the payment of alimony to the time the party receiving it remains unmarried and [illegible] preventing hasty marriages following the granting of divorces are subjects which the increase in the divorce evil is bound to bring sooner or later, to the attention of our law makers

Passing of Ferdinand I

With the passing of King Ferdinand I [illegible] placed his little grandson [illegible] Michael on the throne of Roumania the [illegible] father Crown Prince Carol having [illegible] his rights to the throne the death of [illegible] leaves Queen Marie who [illegible] been—the dominant figure in that [illegible] course the reins of government ha[illegible] been taken over in the name of the [illegible] king by the regency council which is [illegible] young Prince Nicholas who recently [illegible] this country Patriarch Miron of Bu[illegible] and Chief Justice B[illegible] which [illegible] natural course of events will act for him until he attains his majority There is [illegible] the effect that the law may be changed [illegible] the council may be increased to [illegible] the idea being to make Premier Bratiano and the minister of war the added members [illegible] this departure from the prescribed course [illegible] taken the effect will be the same for the council which is said to be friendly to her and her ideas for the handling of the government will be dominated by Marie just as her husband was dominated by her

There is the fiction of course that barring the creation of a dictatorship the king is supreme But King Ferdinand was not a strong man while Marie is a remarkable personage Ferdinand did not inherit the throne He was designated crown prince and heir to the throne by the Roumanian senate the selection having been later approved by the chamber of deputies Until he ascended the throne at the death of his uncle King Carol in 1914 he was more or less dominated by the politicians who had brought about his selection as heir to the throne After he became king Queen Marie superseded the politicians as the dominating influence The king's health was greatly impaired in recent years while Marie was both mentally and physically strong and vigorous which adds color to the intimation oft repeated that she was the real ruler of Roumania

However this may be Roumania has made decided progress in recent years progress so great that the influence of the royal pair just severed by death was gaining steadily Whether Marie was responsible for this progress in large degree or small there can be no question but what she is wise in statescraft probably the brightest royal woman of Europe intellectually strong courageous forceful and popular throughout the kingdom she is ambitious and may rule and attain by alteration of the law even more power than she legally wielded as the queen of Ferdinand Whether she does or not we may expect to find her so long as the regency holds the most powerful and striking figure in Roumania

Boys Taller Than Grandfathers.

BY ROYAL S COPELAND M D

A writer in a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical association has called attention to the rise in the stature of children He has made a study of records going back at least a half century As a result of this survey he declares

It is clear that boys of today are taller than boys of their class and age of half a century ago by an average of [illegible] inches

He makes a further calculation based on a series of examinations of more than 300 Boston boys attending the Massachusetts Institute of Technology the Private Latin school and the Public Latin school He says that Even in comparison with this older group it is seen that our boys exceed by an average of 2 6 10 inches

The average man of today could not get into the armor of the average man of the Middle ages We have increased materially in stature Likewise we have improved not alone in the expectation of life but actually in the span of life

It would be a sad commentary upon medical science and modern sanitation and hygiene if we did not have an increasing chance of long life It is indisputable that men and women of fifty years of age today are far better equipped for old age than were persons of the same age a hundred years ago

Motherhood is less trying today than it was a century ago The cemeteries of olden days contain many graves of young mothers Only the very fittest survived what is always a dreadful ordeal But thanks to modern science childbirth is increasingly kind to mother and infant

The dental care given young children is keeping them in school more days than they used to spend But it is doing more than this—it is preventing bad gums and abscessed roots In consequence rheumatism joint disease heart disease and other debilitating and fatal conditions are less frequently met and will grow less with the years

Better understanding of how to feed children is giving us a race of young folks better nourished bigger sturdier and capable of living more years than their ancestors did Such children won't grow into adult life and old age so soon

We have a way of judging how our forefathers lived In the mountains of eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina are thousands of men and women who may be called our contemporary ancestors Undoubtedly they live and look as the early Americans did They are old in appearance when most of our citizens consider themselves as just beginning life

We have learned how to live It is our duty to [illegible] what we have learned

AN ENEMY FOREWARNED

If during the summer of 1918 Marshal Foch had proclaimed his military plans to the four corners of the earth who knows but what the war would still be going merrily on He did no such thing because he wanted to discomfit the enemy by a combination of force and surprise He struck hard when he was good and ready and at every stage thereafter he left the Germans fret over what was to come next

One could sometimes wish that the generalissimos of our own rum war would take a leaf out of Foch's book People talk about the strategy and tactics of the prohibition enforcement crusade nearly every phrase to be found in an army manual has been applied to it We can not see however, that what is technically called the element of surprise has been put to the test

Now that another offensive is to be launched against international rum smugglers we notice that Seymour Lowman newly installed director of the federal prohibition forces has hastened to explain his line of attack in detail There would be much to say for such a course if it were certain that a mere threat of hostilities could scare the foe into inactivity But nothing of the kind is likely to happen because in the first place the liquor traffic is a tremendously lucrative business—and because the business has survived repeated threats of wars to end the rum war

If Mr Lowman meets an enemy forewarned and prepared in detail [illegible] made his attack one reason will be the blare of trumpets and the noise of cymbals with which our prohibition offensives are too often launched—Detroit Free Press

STANLEY AND BELGIUM

Why should the river boat employed by an African explorer of English birth and American citizenship be set up as a historic monument in the Belgian port of Ostend? Because on the labors of Henry M Stanley is founded Belgium's colonial empire in the heart of Africa

Leopold II king of the Belgians was among the first to recognize the commercial possibilities of a new continent thrown open by Stanley's epoch making journey through the Congo In 1879 the explorer went back to Africa as the agent of the International African association founded by Leopold II In 1884 an international congress at Berlin established the Congo Free State under his sovereignty In 1907 the Free State became the Belgian Congo

The change was brought about by the atrocious exploitation of the Congo natives under the Leopold regime exposed largely through the efforts of the ill starred Roger Casement Stanley himself though far from being a sentimentalist in his relations with the lower races was not unmoved by [illegible] that came to shock the conscience of the world In his autobiography he writes as early as 1896 The King of the Belgians has often desired me to go back to the Congo but to go back would be to be tortured daily by seeing the effects of an erring and ignorant policy [illegible] moral [illegible] injurious to the organizer —New York Times

Views of Those in Public Eye

WILLIAM J BULOW

William J Bulow was elected governor of the state of South Dakota in the autumn of 1926 He is the first Democratic governor of the state since the election of Andrew E Lee in 1896 Bulow is a native of Moscow Ohio and is a graduate of the law school of University of Michigan He has served in the South Dakota state legislature and has been mayor and city attorney at Beresford South Dakota

Governor Bulow says there should be an adjustment of the tariff schedules He expresses his views thus

If the policy of the tariff protection is to be continued for any of our industries the industry of agriculture should have first consideration it at least should have equal protection of tariff measures The welfare of agriculture is of supreme importance not only to this Mid-West country but to the entire nation

"If our nation is to long survive it must be through a survival of our agricultural pursuits The men and women who by their [illegible] and labor produce the food that feeds the world must not be unfairly dealt with An equal opportunity is all that they ask

"If our present discriminatory tariffs [illegible] are not adjusted so as to give them this equal opportunity, in my opinion there is but one thing left for agriculture to do that is to follow the example set them by the American Federation of Labor the one great organization in America today that is able to obtain for the laborers of America a decent wage

"These laborers are able to obtain [illegible] living wage because they have federated themselves together so that when they speak they speak with one voice and can have [illegible] heard and obeyed They have the [illegible] say what they shall receive for their [illegible] industries that are engaged in any [illegible] production determine the price of the [illegible] that they produce Why not agricul[illegible]

Port Huron, Mich., Becomes Crossroads in Liquor Trade

MORE WORKINGS OF LIQUOR MEN ARE REVEALED

[illegible] Mile Water Border Between Lakes Infested by Small Runners

[illegible] July 21—Favored [illegible] and the map make [illegible] the United States Port [illegible] a typical middlewestern [illegible] has been trans[illegible] a more ornate workings of [illegible] to an international crossroads of the [illegible] trade.

Situated at the southern tip of Lake Huron and extending southward along 10 miles along the St Clair River which is the international boundary for 39 miles between Lake Huron and Lake St Clair the city is the operating base for both the Lake Huron vessel rum trade and the motor launch small rum runners who infest the entire 53 mile water border between Lakes Huron and Erie.

On top of and all around the thriving industry of the pre-prohibition area the city now shelters an underground trade whose annual operations run close to $50,000,000.

Emergency Haven

Along the city water front scores of improvised private docks extend open arms to the pleasure yachts of Sarnia Ontario directly across the river. Out in the river a fleet of 50 houseboats are permanently anchored on the American side forming an emergency haven for harassed launches anywhere in the 10 mile Port Huron waterfront.

Several of these houseboats anchored south of the city limits are connected by underground passages to concrete subterranean storage vaults in which are always stored from 50 to 200 cases of Canadian whiskies awaiting trucking facilities to carry them over Michigan's network of paved highways to the larger retailing centers of the middle west.

Unlike Detroit which is the greatest port of entry for Canadian distilled products Port Huron is a shipping center rather than a consuming market. Whereas Detroit 62 miles to the south ships less than half her total receipts Port Huron clears to the west and south virtually 90 per cent of her Canadian liquor imports.

Small Customs Staff

The northern outpost of the 90 mile battle front which United States Coast Guard and customs officials never have been able to conquer Port Huron with a population of approximately 37,000 is guarded by a customs staff of three men. Theirs is the task of inspecting several hundred freight cars daily on passage through the famous grand trunk submarine tunnel to Sarnia attending the legitimate lake shipping business in the public docks and keeping a watchful eye upon the swift gas line fleet.

The five largest Michigan towns along the 90 mile stretch of river between Port Huron and Algonac have no federal prohibition agents. Each has from one to three customs and immigration officers.

It is a matter of public record at Sarnia that Daniel Fube Canadian customs broker at La Salle Ontario reported an income of $12,000 for 1926 from attending export shipments from that one port. His charges were five cents a case for whisky and one per cent ad valorem on beer.

Boat Taxis System

The records of the Canadian Royal Commission's investigation of border smuggling reveal that a single exporter at Courtright cleared liquors valued at $9,002,000 during the nine months ending July 1.

The motor launch traffic from Sarnia is unique in that the shippers operate through a boat taxi organization which undertakes to deliver all offerings at so much a case. These operators clear from $40 to $70 a trip. In open weather the launches make four to seven trips nightly. There is an sacred tradition along the river that the pilots are never caught. They seldom fall into real danger but when they do they abandon their craft with its cargo on the Canadian side of the international line [illegible] and pull into the [illegible] Once out [illegible] boat they are immune [illegible]

[illegible] rifles and pistols which were [illegible] of the border rum [illegible] in the early days of the venture are today as obsolete as the one-case [illegible] of six years ago in which the first [illegible] in the uncharted St Clair began their feeble operations.

COUNTY SCHOOL AUDIT IS UNDERTAKEN HERE

Miss Mary Haupert, Wooster, Starts Check of Records and Accounts

A complete audit of records and accounts of all school districts in Marion County has been started by Miss Mary Haupert of Wooster examiner from the state bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices.

Her inspection will include all records from Sept 10 1925, the closing date of the last audit.

In addition to conducting the examination Miss Haupert will complete the work of installing a new uniform accounting system in all of the school districts in accordance with recently enacted state law. The same system is being put into effect throughout the state.

One of the most important features of the new plan requires all school boards to make detailed appropriations annually for their various expenses. This system it is stated, will prevent all schools from spending more than their revenue from taxes.

Miss Haupert has established her headquarters in the office of the county sealer of weights and measures in the courthouse basement. She stated today that she is prepared to assist school board clerks in making out their annual budgets and financial statements or in helping handle any other special work they may now have on hand.

About two months will be required for completing her work here Miss Haupert says.

9 flat wall paints were tested—and Devoe Velour Finish was chosen

WE wish the result of this test could be shown. It would settle once for all as to which is the best flat wall paint to use. A large corporation had the test made and as a result standardise on Devoe Velour Finish. For Velour Finish leads in: Ease of application—Appearance—Washability—Durability—Economy.

Tiolene Starts Ahead and Lengthens Its Lead

TIOLENE Motor Oil has a natural advantage from the start!

Cabin Creek Crude, from which Tiolene is refined, is clean, clear, amber-colored—just as it flows from the ground. It looks more like refined oil than crude! And it has such remarkable lubricating qualities that it regularly commands a premium over other Pennsylvania grade crudes—a class conceded to be superior for the manufacture of motor oils.

Yet, in spite of the natural advantage of starting from this supreme crude, neither cost nor care has been spared in lengthening Tiolene's lead. No motor oil is refined more skillfully. Each "run" of the premium crude goes through more than a dozen perfecting processes and many additional handlings.

This painstaking precision is your assurance that all of the crude's superior lubricating qualities will be preserved in Tiolene.

The result is an oil which faithfully guards your motor—an oil which is supreme in its heat resistance and which stubbornly retains its body—its oiliness—long after ordinary oils have thinned out and broken down.

Tiolene is "Pure Pennsylvania"—and more. It is 100% Super Pennsylvania Motor Oil.

The super quality of Tiolene assures you of supreme performance—more miles per fill!

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Why Castoria?

Years ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children, Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas H Fletcher
Proven directions on each package Physicians everywhere recommend it.

CHAPTER SIXTY

H[illegible] with his burnouse and [illegible] motion drew forth [illegible] holding it high so [illegible] lights revealed every [illegible]ful headgear.

"[illegible] diadem," he said, "[illegible] of power in the Atlas [illegible] fair means from the [illegible] Omar ben Mansour el [illegible] was held by the mara[illegible] ten years. Amid blood, toil and strife and [illegible] wrested back again from [illegible] up by one whom you [illegible] Youssef el Habassi."

[illegible] of Larry another murmur [illegible] over the multitude and [illegible]ed him near the door.

"[illegible] give to us a sherif who [illegible] man for the tribal [illegible] wizard would be we[illegible]"

[illegible] and looked keenly [illegible] deliberately he turned [illegible] his audience. Those in the [illegible] see the man's hands mov[illegible] face, and Larry, leaping [illegible] a slight stoop that [illegible] Omar ben Medjad [illegible] Tabar el Hassan and [illegible] saw the shoulders [illegible] and become square. It [illegible] man had taken on a [illegible] of stature. Omar's [illegible] fluttered from his face [illegible] his heavy turban from [illegible] with a single graceful [illegible] on his heels and faced [illegible] the diadem on his head. [illegible] gasped and Larry gasped [illegible] a little shriek, then a roar [illegible] have come from the storm words in the Atlas rocked the room.

Omar ben Mansour el Masmazi, beloved sherif of another day, faced the people.

"Ben Mansour, his friend of other years, is e[illegible], Larry!"

When the shouting died the new sherif raised his hand.

"I am not returned from the dead, my beloved tribesmen. I have been in a far country waiting for such time to arrive that would make it possible for me to come back to you. I had thought that my nephew might rule the Berbers, but it came to me that he was too timid, too weak to ever upset the Marabout Group. So, when I received word from the South, from my well loved Swords of the South, that the time seemed ripe for either my nephew or myself to ascend to power, I tricked the dearest friend my brother ever had, one who is as close now to my heart as he was to my brother's, into helping me. This friend you all know as Youssef el Habassi."

Larry, watching, was fascinated and startled. This was not Ben Mansour. Benna was looking at the man with eyes that glistened, brimmed over with utter happiness. The assemblage, its first amazement over, was hanging on the speaker's every word.

"Thanks to the marvellous aid of my wizard friends and to the friends here whom I felt it was safe to reveal myself to, and thanks to my beloved Swords of the South, I was able to achieve success. But, men of the Seven Tribes and our allies, I learned that the one I had thought was my nephew was in very truth my niece."

Again a gasp swept over the listeners, then the speaker went on.

"Tribal law forbids that a woman rule over the warrior tribes of the Berbers, but the Marabout Group had to be overthrown and a true sherif of the blood placed in power. Therefore, I learned during the heat of conflict at the Gate of the Burning in the karst of the valley that I myself must ascend to rule over you, because my nephew, who was in reality my niece, could not, and there was none other left but myself, because Omar ben Mansour el Masmazi, my twin brother, was dead. You know the fight that has been fought, but you can never guess the treachery that has been met with, the wizardry of Youssef, nor can you know of the turmoil and strife that has gone before. But out of it all I am come to rule over you as my brother, your old sherif, would have ruled. The marabouts are gone, powerless, to revert to their natural calling. Tell me, men of the Berbers, tell me, beloved Swords of the South—are you satisfied?"

The roar that answered this question was greater than anything Larry had ever imagined could come from human throats. There was no doubting its meaning or its sincerity, either. Ben Mansour's brother was here already, their beloved sherif here to rule them wisely and well. Are they were not [illegible]

"Then I choose for my ruling city Duk el Abda. This building I shall convert into the kasbah. We shall have peace with Spain, therefore I shall have no need for an armed fortress. I shall need no standing army of warriors. Go with Allah, my beloved, and go in peace. I shall be here always when you need me, to settle your quarrels, adjudicate your wrongs and mete out reward or punishment as the case may demand. I am here at home to those who love me, and I want every man of all the Tribes to feel that this is true. I have no more to say at this time. My heart is full and I think that I could be no happier."

And so the ceremonies ended. Larry, watching the last of the tribesmen leaving the building, found Mansour at his side, one arm about Benna. He turned to the man and, tears in his eyes, clasped him close. He searched the other's face, finding that now the heavy matted beard was gone, to be replaced by a neat pointed one, now that the collodion that had given a twist to the eyebrows had disappeared, the man was the perfect image of the one who had died that goblin night back in the Jersey flats.

He found Mansour's brother's eyes regarding him quizzically.

"Then Ben is dead?"

Mansour understood him and answered instantly.

"A subtle drug, my friend. The Moors you and Giles shot at were his enemies, really men from the marabouts. It was all arranged that they were to slay my brother and seize his lifeless body the minute that you and Giles disappeared. He and I always knew it was coming, how it would come and what the result would be. People never knew there were two of us, although I sat in his throne as often as he did."

Larry dropped his head in sorrow.

Mansour went on:

"Without your wonderful aid, mine would have been well nigh a hopeless fight. I had not thought to ascend to power, however. I had meant for you, with my aid as Omar ben Medjad, to place my brother's son, Allal Abdi, on the tribal throne. I had thought never to reveal myself, but being assured that Allal Abdi had his rightful due I had planned to spend the remainder of my days near him and guard him, advise him and watch over him. But that night when you called out to Benna, 'Little Flower,' I realized that all my plans had gone for naught, so far as Allal Abdi was concerned. However, I had gone too far to draw back, for too many were waiting for me to give them the sherif that I had promised them. I had, you see, to carry on, as our friends the English say. And as I progressed it became clearer in my mind that in the end I myself would have to assume tribal authority. But I had no wish to do this until the power of the treacherous Marabout Group had been broken utterly. You, dear friend, more than any other man, broke that power."

"I don't see how you can give me so much credit—" Larry was interrupted by Mansour.

"When you carried through without a fault every one of my plans you did it, Larry; when you impressed the power of your wizardry on the people at the Gate of the Burning you did it; when you read the future to the one I then thought was the real Marabout of Adrar you did it; and when you wrecked the fire room, killed and stripped death and recovered the jewel you did it; when you released the prisoners from the Temple and blew up the Temple itself—O Larry, my brother's dearest friend and my dearest friend, you did so much that I cannot enumerate it all."

"Then," and Larry, regret and relief commingled in his voice, "the affair is over? The show is ended and the curtain dropped? Well, I am sorry in a way, yet more than any degree of sorrow is the degree of gladness that I feel."

"It is over indeed," Mansour replied, "and if at times it seemed that you were acting the comic opera of your own beloved land, why, it all had a purpose; it all served an end."

Larry turned to Benna, taking her hand. She moved from her uncle's embrace and came instantly to Larry's side, standing close. Mansour, looking at them, smiled.

"And now," said Larry, "I shall claim my reward." He was looking deep into Benna's glorious eyes.

"I am glad," said Mansour simply, "that it is so. She will make you happy, dear friend, and you must love her dearly—always. Remember, I told you once that a Berber returned love for love. The more you love her, the more she will love you. Grow cold toward her and she will prison her heart away. But," and he smiled quickly, softly, winking away the suggestion of tears, "I know you will never grow tired of her, Larry, never neglect her; you are not that kind. You I know will love her always; take her with my blessing, and Allah bless you too."

He turned and strode swiftly away, opening a little door in the rear wall. He stepped through this and with a quick wave of his white slender hand disappeared.

Larry turned again to Benna, raising his arms. She came to him and he clasped her close. Her arms went about his neck. He visioned a villa, a snowy house in a landscape of green, perhaps on the shore of a blue, blue lake; he visioned the life that was to come for him, this glorious girl, this wonderful dream maiden at his side forever and forever.

He felt her lips yield to his and for them time stood still.

BITTER MEMORIES

I[illegible] waited for her answer. Yet it was a [illegible] to her long before.

For Lillian, sanest and wisest of women in her conduct of her own life and her relations to all those coming in contact with her, was imitating the ostrich in regard to her young daughter, and with her head buried in the sands of love and fear for Marion was refusing to see that the lovely child was fast growing into womanhood.

No mother in the world could have given her daughter wiser or more loving training than she had given Marion during the happy childhood following the enforced separation of Lillian from her baby because of the villainous treachery of Marion's father. From the moment that the death of Tom Morton gave her child back to her Lillian had lived only for her daughter. But though she had lavished on her everything for which a child could wish, she also had given her a disciplined, regular life, and the result was as winsome and wholesome a child as any mother's heart could desire.

But she was still a child when all the other girls of her age were distinctly growing up. Marion had had few playmates, and had desired none, for her mother never was too busy to share all her childish joys and sorrows, and when she was compelled to leave the city upon some of her numerous commissions she either took the child with her or left her at our house, where she was petted, indulged and happy, but where she found no companions of her own age.

Lillian did not send her to school, keeping her in the charge of the best tutors obtainable. Marion's quick mind, so like her mother's, expanded under this regime, but she learned nothing of other girls, nothing to prepare her for the arduous job of living outside the shelter of her home.

It had seemed to me, watching yet not daring to speak, that Lillian never would send the girl to school. But the Autumn before she at last most reluctantly had placed Marion in a splendidly conducted school whose standards of admission were not based upon the purse of the parents but upon their home standards. Clicquot Club Ginger Ale

Golden or Pale Dry

TO suit your taste or the time, you need only say "Clicquot Club." And whether your choice be the rich, full-flavored Golden or the delicate Pale Dry, you are sure of the same mellow flavor that is the result of six months' aging . . . . away from light and air.

The name Clicquot Club is your guaranty of the worth of a product whose ingredients are skillfully blended with water of virgin purity from a natural source, and properly aged.

Only the crystal liquid from the famous Clicquot Spring is used in making these two types of the supreme ginger ale. With this, according to a secret formula which cannot be duplicated, are blended the choicest of flavorings. And a six-months' aging gives these ingredients a chance to thoroughly blend into a full flowering of the unequalled Clicquot Club flavor.

All of this is carried out in the spirit of true craftsmanship, and under expert supervision, at every step of the process.

For more than forty years this healthful beverage has been the prime favorite of those who know and appreciate "vintage" ginger ale.

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless. Of next importance then is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE. —Adv.
